REMUS TRIAL OFFERS LEGAL SPECTACLE

DEFENDANT CAST IN DUAL ROLE PLANS TO PRESENT OWN CASE

Opening Statement Of Prisoner To Be Longest On Record

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 15.—A spectacular legal battle, unprecedented in American jurisprudence is developing in the Remus murder trial.

On the defense side there is George Remus, former Chicago criminal attorney and the biggest bootlegger this country ever heard of, playing the dual role of "Remus the defendant" and "Remus the lawyer." On the side of the prosecution is Charles P. Taft, 28 year old son of William Howard Taft, former president of the United States.

Already, with the trial only at the point where selection of the jury has hardly got well under way, Remus and Taft are at loggerheads, matching mind against mind—the brains of the business genius who once controlled a $100,000,000 illicit liquor traffic against that of the young and brilliant prosecuting attorney engaged in the biggest case of his career.

'Remus is going to make the opening statement in the case of state versus Remus," said Remus today, avoiding as usual, the first person pronoun.

"Remus' statement will be the longest ever made in a trial of this kind—about 12,500 words. It will bring home to the jury exactly what Remus means by his plea of transitory maniacal insanity."

Remus claims he was "transsitorially" or momentarily insane when he shot and killed his wife, Imogene, in Eden Park, Cincinnati, on October 6 last, while she was on her way to court to divorce him, his mind "exploded" he said.

Young Taft said he was fully prepared to cope with this plea and with any tactics the wily Remus may adopt in court. Taft took great care not to disclose the state's case or to even reveal who will be his principal witness.

"I will say, however, that the state's case will be limited to those who actually witnessed the murder unless Remus forces us to go further," declared Taft this morning. "If Remus attempts to prove, as he says he will, his allegations of a so-called conspiracy against him, designed and carried out by Mrs. Remus, Franklin L. Dodge, Jr. and others, it will be necessary of course, for the state to use many more witnesses."

Remus, on his part, says he "will tear things wide open" and "open the eyes of the people" with startling disclosures.

One of the surprising developments so far has been the fact that none of the state's important witnesses have made an appearance in the Hamilton County Court House where the trial is being held. Miss Ruth Holmes Remus, 19 year old daughter of the slain woman, has not showed up and she is not at the former home of her mother in the Alms Hotel; no trace in Cincinnati has been found of Mrs. Grace Campbell of Miami, Fla., the slain woman's sister; nothing has been seen of Mrs. Julia M. Brown, mother of the woman Remus killed or her brother, Harry Brown. It is understood they are receiving mail at a post office box at an outlying sub-station.

Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., "the man in the case" whom Remus charges stole his wife's love, is reported in hiding. He may be the state's principal witness. Remus has expressed a desire to get him on the stand for cross examination.

COMMUNIST PARTY EXPELS LEADERS

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—The names of Trotsky and Zinvoviev today were stricken from the roster of the Russian Communist party.

Official announcement to this effect was made last night.

It was also announced that the party's central committee had expelled from its midst Rakovsky, Kamenev and Smilga.

None of the ousted men will ever be allowed to hold an official position again. The expulsion prevents Trotsky from serving as chief of the concession committee and Kamenev from serving as Soviet ambassador to Rome.

DOOMED TO DIE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 15.—Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, having refused a reprieve, the four bandits convicted of the murder of George Condit, in Newark, during the hold up of the Reid Ice Cream company payroll last year, appear doomed to die this evening in the electric chair at the Trenton state prison.

An Editorial

A brighter day is dawning for Xenia and success is in store for this city's good merchants if the spirit of co-operation, now in the making, will only continue.

The unified action of Xenia merchants as expressed in a new idea Dollar Day for Thursday, which is being sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, represents a wholesome situation that has recently come about in the business life of the city.

Greene Countians are now given the picture of unified business interests, solidifying in a common merchandising program and working together on a special bargain day of supreme interest to every Xenia and Greene County citizen who is interested in making the family budget cover family expenses and leave something for the savings account.

In a short but active career the Xenia Retail Merchants Association has given indications of being, probably, the most ambitious and energetic commercial group this city has ever known. The co-operation that is being exhibited, stands out more prominently than anything Xenia has ever experienced along this line.

In presenting a Dollar Day program for the buying public of Greene County, Thursday, these merchants are doing more than offering attractive merchandise at attractive prices. They are proving that such ambitious programs can be undertaken for the common good of both merchant and public, and with the complete sympathy and co-operation of each merchant. Competitors in business are working shoulder to shoulder to make the bargain Dollar Day a great success and to insure the bargain offers being real and attractive, a committee of merchants is guaranteeing the buying public satisfaction by censuring the special items offered by each store.

This is a new commercial situation in Xenia and many Xenians, not engaged in business, find in the situation much to cheer and much to congratulate. Let's hope the merchants are encouraged in their maiden effort by a bang-up, successful Dollar Day, and that the Merchants Association which is backing the project, may be strengthened by the loyal support of all who are interested in Xenia's future.

WOMAN PAYS—SOMETIME!

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Charged with being the first feminine alimony defaulter, Grace W. Elliott today was facing jail sentence. After she had filed for divorce her husband filed a cross complaint alleging that he had been ordered from their home when he had become too old and feeble to work. Mrs. Elliott was ordered to pay him $150 a month.

The husband charges the first payment has not been made.

INVENTOR SLAIN AT PHONE; BROTHER-IN-LAW BEING SOUGHT

Picturesque Citizen Believed Victim Of Family Quarrel

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 15—While Herbert O. Meisterknecht, picturesque and somewhat mysterious Highlands citizen lay dead with five bullets in his body, police today extended their search for his brother-in-law to nation-wide proportions.

Meisterknecht, inventor, former commander of a submarine in the German Imperial Navy, according to his own admission, and later an officer in the United States Navy, was assassinated while talking over the telephone with his attorney.

One bullet plowed through his brain and four others lodged in his body. His lawyer, found the inventor crumpled on the floor, one hand still clasping the telephone receiver.

On the testimony of neighbors who reported seeing a "small man run from the inventor's shop, jump into a blue sedan and speed away," authorities announced they were searching for Alexander Schreiber, of Cleveland.

Attorney Olde declared that Schreiber had just driven here from Cleveland and had quarreled bitterly with the inventor over what he termed "injustices" to Mrs. Meisterknecht.

Meisterknecht was credited with inventing a device for measuring the gasoline in a tank and was said to have been working on equipment to convert gasoline engines into fuel oil engines.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15—Police here today were seeking trace of Alex Schreiber, 38, of this city, for questioning, in connection with the death of Herbert Meisterknecht, 43, inventor, and former U. S. naval office at Highlands, N. J., Monday.

Meisterknecht was a former Clevelander.

Leonard Schreiber, a brother of Alex, said the latter left the Schreiber home here last Wednesday and wrote from Philadelphia several days later.

Friends of Meisterknecht here said Alex Schreiber had been displeased when his sister married the inventor because Meisterknecht had been divorced from a former wife by whom he had two children.

GRAND JURY PROBES ELECTION FRAUDS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—Grand jury investigation of alleged illegal registration prior to the mayoralty election here last week was to get under way today, with C. L. Davis and J. A. Goodown, from the attorney general's office, in charge.

Many voters, it is charged, registered at addresses other than those where they actually reside. George Ritter, Toledo, attorney, who has represented the attorney general during the probe thus far, has filed 104 affidavits concerning alleged irregularities in the registration.

OLD LINCOLN MOTOR CAR STOCKHOLDERS NAME FORDS IN SUIT

Ask $6,000,000 Damages —Allege Fords Failed To Keep Promise

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 15.—More than 1,800 stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor Car company headed by Henry M. and Wilfred C. Leland, filed suit for approximately $6,000,000 against Henry and Edsel ford in circuit court today. A forecast of this legal action was carried exclusively by International News Service several weeks ago.

The 1,800, all listed as plaintiffs in the case, charge that the Fords have failed to keep an agreement to reimburse them for the losses they suffered when the Lincoln Motor Car company was purchased by Henry Ford as a receiver's sale for $8,000,000.

"The Fords," the declaration asserts, "having secured control of the assets and business of the Lincoln Motor company by means of a promise and agreement to reimburse stockholders, and having failed to perform their agreement, they ought not be permitted to retain in their hands the property so acquired."

The court is asked to require the Fords to repay the stockholders.

The declaration sets forth that Henry and Edsel Ford performed that part of an agreement which required them to pay claims of merchandising and other creditors, but virtually ignored the stockholders claim.

The bill add, however, that the creditors who were paid, obtained their money because the Fords were forced to pay them, and continues:

"Thereafter Henry Ford permitted it to be announced in various newspapers, magazines and periodicals that he had voluntarily and as a matter of generosity paid said creditors in full, and permitted his alleged conduct in so doing to be characterized as an act of beneficene and generosity."

The declaration summarized asserts:

That due to industrial depression in 1920 there was a need for ready cash by the old Lincoln company.

That among other persons approached by the Lelands with reference to reorganization were the Fords.

FRISCO IS SEEKING G. O. P. CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—Carrying with him a certified check for $250,000, William H. Crocker, Republican national committeeman from California, will leave here Sunday for New York and Washington to urge the Republican National Committee to select San Francisco as the place for the 1928 Republican national convention.

WRECKAGE OF GAS TANK IN PITTSBURGH BLAST

Top photo shows a view of the wreckage of the tank of the Reedsdale plant of the Equitable Gas company at Pittsburgh, Pa., after the explosion which destroyed the vat and spread death and destruction throughout the neighborhood. Lower is a view of the tank, showing the twisted steel frame and water from broken mains pouring in. The blast rocked the city for miles, destroying property throughout for blocks throughout the section in which the gas tank was situated. Pictures rushed by airplane to Central Press.

ADMINISTRATION USES PRESSURE TO PREVENT BIG TAX REDUCTION

Proponents Of $400,000,000 Cut Virtually Lose Hopes —Smoot Changes Views After Talk With Coolidge —Flood Relief Worries Solons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. — A wave of pessimism swept the ranks of congressional advocates of a huge tax reduction program today as the administration began to exert pressure to hold down the cut.

With the house ways and means committee still in the preliminary stages of framing the new bill after exhaustive hearings, proponents of a tax cut of $400,000,000 had virtually abandoned hope of success. This program was originally proposed by Democratic leaders and was backed by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The real fight, it was indicated, would be between a revised Democratic house program for a $321,000,000 cut in the limitation of $225,000,000 set by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The action of Senator Smoot, (R), of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee, in changing his views after being called into conference by President Coolidge, was responsible for much of the pessimism of the group determined to have congress make the taxpayer a present something like the big tax cuts of previous years. Smoot said Mellon's recommendation should be accepted.

While Rep. William R. Green, (R) of Iowa, chairman of the ways and means committee, remained silent following his conference with Mr. Coolidge, he has expressed belief that the tax cut would be under $300,000,000.

The tremendous sentiment for adequate flood relief in the Mississippi valley, together with demands for a complete nation-wide flood-prevention program, have also caused many members of congress to recall their earlier predictions on tax reduction.

MAN WHO ASSISTED FAKE HOLD UP CAUGHT

SIDNEY, O., Nov. 15—James Kimmel, 27, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, today is held in the county jail here, under $10,000 bond, on a charge of participating in a "fake" holdup, whereby Alphonse Berry, Shelby County treasurer, obtained $37,000.

Berry reported last June that he had been held up and robbed of $37,000 in county funds. Later, however, he admitted that the holdup was "framed," and was sentenced to ten years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

He declared, that Kimmel, who assisted in the plot, took most of the money. Kimmel, arrested several days ago in Detroit, denied this, though he admits, according to police, that he participated in the robbery.

PIG WOMAN HOME

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 15—Mrs. Jane Gibson Easton, star witness in the sensational Hall-Mills murder case, was back on her farm in Hamilton Township here today after lying at the point of death for a year in the Jersey City hospital.

BELIEVE MANY MORE BODIES ARE BURIED IN BLAST WRECKAGE

Recovery Of Bodies Gigantic Task For Workers—Two Probes Started—Pittsburgh Council Appropriates Fund.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—With many dead believed still buried beneath tons of debris which only huge cranes can remove and with the recovered bodies standing at twenty-two, a dual investigation of the disastrous explosion of the Equitable Gas Company's plant here opened today.

County Coroner W. J. McGregor will attempt to fix the responsibility for the explosion, one of the worst here in years, and at the same time the Pennsylvania public service commission sent its secretary, H. D. Hirsch, here to make a survey.

Despite wild reports that the known death toll has risen as high as fifty, it was established definitely by International News Service that only twenty-two bodies have been removed. These are in the county morgue. It is quite generally agreed among rescue workers, however, that many dead still lie buried beneath fallen buildings.

An army of rescue workers labored through the night under the glare of a battery of mammoth searchlights to reach the buried victims, but their efforts were puny compared with the gigantic task before them.

"It is doubtful whether we can reach further bodies," acting fire Captain T. M. Rebele, in charge of the night detail, told International News Service, "until a big derrick is moved up to lift this mass of twisted steel."

Many persons at work in the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company, whose building stood on the lot adjoining the gas plant have not been accounted for and it is believed that they are under the building, which was crushed like paper when sections of the steel framework of the exploding gas tank fell upon it.

It is feared that several employes of the Clay Pot Company, working in the basement at the time, were drowned without a chance for escape when water from bursting mains flooded that part of the plant. Rescue workers fear that at twenty-three more bodies will be found in the wreckage there.

The injured, including persons cut by flying glass in some instances several miles from the scene of the explosion, will number about 600, according to Coroner McGregor, who said the hospitals had treated 480 victims and that the others received treatment in their own homes.

While the rescue work proceeded, Pittsburgh generously provided relief for persons made homeless. At a specikal session recommended by Mayor Charles H. Kline, the city council appropriated $100,000 to provide food and shelter for the homeless sufferers.

Regardless of where the responsibility for the explosion is placed, a vigorous attempt to have council pass an ordinance requiring the gas company to move all gas storage tanks from residential districts to the suburbs, will be made by Councilman Harry A. Little, he said today.

At the special council session, Little introduced a bill to that effect the purpose of which is to hold losses at a minimum in the event of future explosions. This time the effect of the blast was felt throughout the downtown district as the plant is located across the river from the main business section. Thousands of plate glass windows crumbled as the tank let go.

Thirty large commercial houses and 200 home-owners were hard hit by the gas tornado, according to unofficial estimates. There were indications that little if any of the property damage would be met by insurance companies, as few fire policies included damage incited by concussion.

The loss in window glass alone was estimated by various insurance companies as low as $50,000 and as high as $150,000. Much of this loss is covered by special display window insurance.

Insurance officials said it was too early to estimate the total property damage with any degree of certainty. They said it might run as high as $10,000,000, or might fall far below this mark, depending upon the value of destroyed property which cannot yet be ascertained.

Today the district for five blocks on either side of the gas plant resembled war-torn France. A heavy artillery fire could have done no worse damage than the concussion when the 5,000,000 cubic foot gas tank let go. A spark from a blow torch in the hands of workmen repairing an adjoining tank is advanced by officials of the gas company as the probable cause.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—As a sequel to the disastrous gas tank explosion, another fatal accident occurred today near the Equitable Gas company's wrecked plant.

Frank Kuepferele, 30, foreman directing the hoisting of twisted steel girders from the wrecked Joseph Horne Company warehouse, was fatally injured when a mass of reinforcing steel fell on him from the hoist. His skull was fractured and he died a few minutes later in a hospital.

CAPPER AND M'NARY AMONG SPEAKERS AT MEETING OF GRANGE

National Body Meets At Cleveland On Wednesday

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, farm-bloc leader in congress for several years, and Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen farm-relief bill, are scheduled to address respective sessions of the national grange annual convention, which opens here Wednesday and continues for nine days.

Convening today for its third annual meeting, the Ohio Grange will hold business sessions and then merge into meetings with the national organization, starting tomorrow.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 farmers from all parts of the United States are expected to attend the joint convention, and early indications point to a determined effort on the part of the Grange to secure farm-relief measures from the next congress.

Commenting upon proposed farm-relief, L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, explained a plan which the Grange is sponsoring.

"The plan provides that, to start, one-half of the tariff rates should be made more applicable for the debenture value," he said.

"For example, the present tariff on wheat being 42 cents a co-operative association in Kansas ships wheat to Europe. Liverpool largely, fixes the world prices, less freight costs to reach that market.

"The exporter under our plan, would secure the Liverpool price, plus the export depenture value, which in this case would be 21 cents, or in other words, he and the American millers, if they wanted to secure wheat, would bid the world price, plus the value of the export debenture certificate."

The Ohio farm group, it is understood, will formulate resolutions seeking "better roads" and a "system of rural police."

Merchants Plan "Dollar Day" Here

Xenia's new live-wire Retail Merchants Association swung into action Tuesday to give Xenia and Greene County the best Dollar Day in the history of these special bargain days.

With the big special day set for Thursday, merchants Tuesday presented the most effective line-up for the bargain campaign that has ever been organized to sponsor a similar merchandising, occasion here.

With the Xenia Retail Merchants Association firmly behind the Dollar Day, with all merchants co-operating effectively in the sale day and with a committee of the organization censoring all special Dollar Day advertisements, business men were not only assured of a successful sale day but customers were guaranteed a wide assortment of bargain offerings.

A new advertising venture, in which merchants are pooling their publicity efforts on their choicest bargain offerings is an interesting feature of the Dollar Day campaign. Each merchant co-operating in the sale day, is using space in a double-page group advertisement in today's paper. Each advertisement announces three of the choicest bargains that come under the "dollar" heading for Thursday.

The double-page group will serve as a catalogue for Thursday bargain hunters. A committee of the organization is censuring all the advertisements for these special pages, eliminating duplications and guaranteeing the store patrons bargain merchandise by assuring the public that the items thus offered are real dollar bargains.

In this way the merchants hope to build up a foundation of co-operation with the buying public that will make Thursday a red letter day in the history of Xenia merchandising. In addition, however, to the group advertisements on Dollar Day specials, merchants are offering other attractive bargains for Dollar Day in their regular advertising space in this paper.

Many bargains, that cannot be called Dollar bargains, will be thrown on sale Thursday as an added feature of the day, so that the occasion will be a bargain-feast for all members of the family. Special mark-down prices on first-class merchandise, an almost unheard of thing in merchandising shortly before the holidays, is one way these merchants are going to give evidence of their faith in their customers as a means of proving the advantage of this sale to the buying public.

DANCING MOTHERS ARE HOME LOVERS

Pat Rooney III passing Pat Rooney, Jr., a trick cigar, while Mrs. Rooney looks on.

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Zip goes another of the popular misconceptions:

Dancing mothers, so long depicted as wild cats of a jazz age, really are the most home loving of women, whose chief thoughts devolve entirely upon the bringing up of happy families.

Leastwise, that is the state of affairs in the Rooney family, than whom there has been no more "dancinger." For the annals of the Rooneys having been running continuously with the annals of the variety stage for the past half century.

Ancestors Stage Folk

The first Pat Rooney, called the American "Harry Lauder" in his decade, was one of the highest priced comedians of the day. In 1873 he married Josie Granger, another performer of vaudeville. All of their five children followed in their footsteps.

Most outstanding of the group was Pat, Jr., who seemed to inherit the sparkle of the father. He married Marion Bent—also of the stage, and their team of Rooney and Bent became world famous.

But when Pat Rooney the Third came along, they resolved to give him the opportunities they never had. They planned his education with great care. At thirteen Pat went to the Peekskills Military Academy, not to become a soldier, but to learn algebra, French history and logic—subjects his dad never studied.

Young Pat Balks

It was expensive, keeping a home in the city, a boy at boarding school, and quarters on the road. So Pat, the father, although he was getting on in years, kept hight on dancing. And Marion Bent stepped right along with him.

The boy finished his prep school and was sent to college. But when he came home from a holiday not so long ago, he spilled over. He did not want to go back. He wanted to follow his dad's dance steps.

The father welcomed the son's suggestion. It was a tribute to his calling. And now the team of ma and pa, will be a team of the whole family.

Young Rooney, now nineteen, never took a dancing lesson—because his dad before him never took any. Yet the son has the same tricky feet, the same stage presence, and the same personality of both his parents.

And at home he is just a kid—trying to play tricks on the old man by palming off trick cigars, or tripping him up otherwise.

Some day another young Marion Bent may come along—and another line of the famous dancing family will be continued.

M'ANDREW TRIAL IS AGAIN POSTPONED; WRITER TESTIFIES

Says Chicago School Head Barred Funds For Old Ironsides

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—The long drawn out trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of Chicago's public school system, who is on the carpet before the board of education on charges of insubordination and spreading of pro-British propaganda in the schools, was marking time again today.

After a week's delay the sensational hearing got under way again yesterday, only to adjourn at the end of the session until tomorrow morning. And again, at the latest session, it was with difficulty that the members of the school board were kept awake.

Charles Grant Miller, a New York magazine writer and head of the Patriotic League for Preservation of American History, was the prosecution's star witness. He charged that McAndrew had refused to permit funds for the restoration of "Old Ironsides" to be solicited in the schools under his charge.

Miller headed the movement in 1926 to save "Old Ironsides."

He also charged that a body of American authors and professors of history had been entertained in London and that there had been a debate in the British Parliament over the cost of the entertainment.

Miller sought to show that the British government was directly connected with pro-British propaganda in American schools. The movement to distort American history followed close upon the World War, according to Miller.

FIREMEN SPEEDY IN TEST RUN MONDAY

Firemen established a new record of forty-three seconds in putting through a practice telephone call for a fire alarm pdeceding a regular bi-monthly test run early Monday night to Box No. 72, at the extreme end of S. Detroit St.

After the call was completed, the first fire truck arrived at the box from which the alarm was sent, in one minute and thirty seconds, showing the alarm was answered in two minutes and thirteen seconds after the call was made.

Similar test calls and runs are made every two weeks on Monday nights. Drills in the use of pumps, chemicals and ladders are held regularly every Monday night at the fire department to establish the greatest possible efficiency.

COLLEGE BOYS SERVE AS HIRED PARTNERS TO PAY EXPENSES

Dave Hilgers, below, and Fred Wilcox

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 15.—Dancing through life always has been a symbol of wasted opportunities, but Dave Hilgers and Fred Wilcox, two husky University of Wisconsin seniors, are dancing their way through college and finding it an unusually profitable occupation.

While their classmates are earning their board washing dishes or waiting on table, Hilgers and Wilcox are filling the roles of professional escorts.

The two students discovered this unique work by accident. They had filed their application for work at the university employment office.

One day a girl called who wanted to learn how to dance and she was willing to pay for it. Hilgers was called in and he delivered the goods so well that the girl asked him to take her to the next dance—for pay, of course.

The next day Wilcox was called in and a partnership formed. They established a rate of wages, and advertised.

"You bet it pays," says Wilcox. "You'd be surprised how many women there are who are willing to pay for the companionship of a decent young fellow.

"We get all sorts of requests. Dances predominate, but there are occasional theater invitations, and we often are invited to stay for dinner—all of which helps two struggling students."

FOOLING FUTURISTS

An international art hoax by which Paul Jordan Smith, well known author, fooled critics of the futurist school is revealed by a writer in "The Bookman."

For nearly three years Mr. Smith has been exhibiting "pictures" in New York and Chicago under the name "Pavel Jerdanowitch". Roughly sketching on a piece of plasterboard what purported to be a female inhabitant of a South Sea island eating a banana, Mr. Smith daubed it with weird impressionistic colors and called his work "Yes, We Have no Bananas." Renaming the banana picture "Exaltation," Smith shipped it in the spring of 1925 to the exhibition of the independents held at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York. Within a month he received a letter from the "Revue du Vrai et du Beau" (Review of the True and the Beautiful) a Paris art journal, which later produced a picture of the painting.

Then Smith painted another alleged picture labeled it "Aspiration," and entered it in the no-jury exhibition at Marshall Field's in Chicago. Out of 480 entries the art critic of a leading Chicago newspaper selected it for production and lavish encomium. Mr. Smith knows nothing whatsoever about paintings, the hoax being, as he now confesses, a revenge upon certain ultra-modernists of the art world for their disparaging comments on the author's artist-wife, Sarah Bixby Smith, whose work was described by them as "of the old school".

BEING CIVILIZED

An ingenious propagandum asks us to draw a conclusion from the fact that beasts and savages do not know the emotion of love that it is an invention of civilized man, says a writer in the "Bookman.' Hence, by easy stages, we are led to the assumption that the more we love, the more civilized we are. Doubtless that is so, but the adjective is not always or unqualifiedly complimentary. Rheumatism and Bright's disease are failing peculiarly the property of civilized man, but they have yet to be indicated as the proofs of a high state of sensibility. If love is to be laid at civilization's door there is no good enough reason why we should not bracket it with those others of civilization's foundlings, such as, lets say, flat feet, suicide waves, crime, introspection, bad poetry, and the mtion pictures, rather than with the Olympic games, the Greek language, Shakespeare and Beethoven.

U. S. TRACTORS FOR AFRICA

Tractors are replacing oxen as the power unit of economy in South African agriculture despite their higher price, according to P. J. Stevenson, United States trade commissioner. In his opinion the tractor is being adopted by South African farmers because it reduces production costs and permits rapid work in the proper crop season.

Because of the long distance from this country, the tractor costs about twice as much in South Africa as in the United States, while gasoline prices are from two to three times greater. Figures of the Department of Commerce indicate that Africa generally is acknowledging the tractor as the established power unit. More tractors are being purchased from the United States.

The Way of the World

BEING ON TIME

It has been said that punctuality is the politeness of princes. Have you thought of your failure to be punctuate as a discourtesy? You may excuse yourself most talkatively, but the discourtesy is there. You have imposed upon others. You have been rankly selfish in not considering their time of value. You have kept men waiting. That is pure selfishness. The writer has heard men say that they waste hours of time waiting for others to keep appointments. Courtesy has fallen to low estate when we can't at least be prompt.

ARE REASONS REAL?

A California newspaper printed a series of interviews with prominent spinsters under the title "Why She Never Married." Are they telling why they never married or are they giving the reasons that they give when they are asked why they never married? The truth would be interesting. Anyway, women are so successful in the affairs of the world today that marriage has at last taken its modest place along with other possible careers.

EVOLUTION OF LAUGHTER

Showing how man has advanced in one way at least. Centuries ago physical deformity was laughed at. A cripple was the butt of a joke. Nobody today laughs at a crippie. But it is interesting to note how we have clung to the idea. We laugh when a man falls down stairs in a show—or on the ice, for that matter, so long as he isn't seriously hurt. We laugh when man is humiliated by the wind which blows off his hat. We still laugh at discomfiture. That is a step beyond laughing at natural infirmities. As man becomes more civilized he will not even laugh at temporary misfortune. The evolution of man's good nature is the evolution of his laughter.

COLLECTING DIMES

Did you ever try dime collecting. A year ago an Iowa woman started out to make ninety cents do a dollar's work. The other dime she put in a bank. The game appealed to her. It was easy. Her enthusiasm grew. At the end of the year she had saved 1,800 dimes. That's a good game. And that's thrift.

FRIENDSHIP

Ibsen, very thoughtful Norwegian, once said that it is a pity that great men can never really have friends. Even men as wise as Ibsen can be wrong. There is no greatness which is so great that there is no place for friendship. There are men who are intellectually so much above the most of their fellows that they are out of sympathy with many ideas that are commonly accepted. But the greatest men can make the truest friends.

The Daybook of A New Yorker

By Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—There is a vendor of second-hand umbrellas on Park Row. He looks like a soiled and shop-worn Santa Claus. If you will listen to him, he will tell you stories of his encounters with the Red Skins in his youth. I don't know whether he really ever was an Indian fighter or whether he makes up his tales from remembering passage in the nickel novels of the 'Nineties. I suspect the latter; but at any rate he is one of the many lonely figures of metropolitan life, a man pathetically eager for an audience hungry for a sympathetic ear into which he can pour tales of past adventures which, perhaps he has never had.

It is related that the movie critics who attend the Thursday afternoon "pre-views" at Roxy's theatre have a hard time concentrating on the picture. It seems that the projecting room is ordinarily used as a dressing room by the chorus girls of Roxy's gang and that these young ladies just change their clothes there, movie critics or no movie critics.

Then there was that young man who got arrested for sleeping in the subway—an event the New York newspapers treated at length. He worked as a day laborer for $35 a week and as a messenger on his day off. He wanted his people back home to think that he was making good in a big way in the great metropolis. To save money to send to them he slept nightly in the subway trains. For clothing, he picked up odds and ends, checked them in various stores and picked them up again as the garments he was wearing went into dissolution. He solved the problems of toilette by getting his shaves and haircuts in the Bowery schools for barbers, where such service is free. He had reduced frugality to an art but his career was cut short by an unimaginative and unsympathetic policemen .....And so it goes in life: the policemean is always there to prevent us from realizing our most gorgeously happy dreams.

The new Supreme Court building is a vast edifice containing about twenty-five courtrooms. A newspaper reporter delegated to cover the news there is up against handicaps of time and space. One enterprising reporter bethought himself of a noble idea. He bought himself a pair of roller skates, and thus equipped, he sped swiftly from court to court. But the sedate gentlemen of the bench, unused to having people careening into their courts in this breezy fashion, put a stop to this method of locomotion. The reporter in question has asked permission to use a bicycle.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

A MODERN DIOGENES

I met a man in a Pullman car who said he was disgusted with newspaperd advertising and would never pin his faith to the want columns again. I inquired what had thus soured him on advertising, and here is his story:

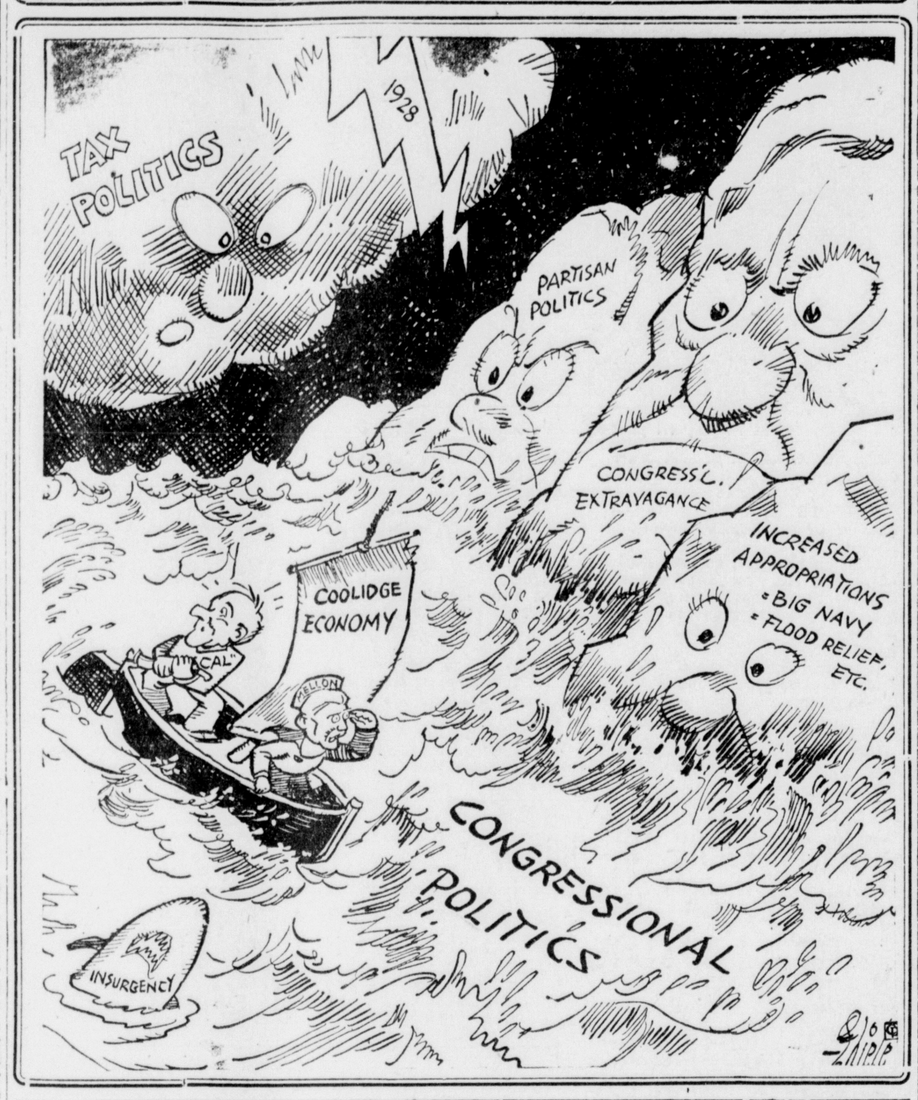

It had occured to him that all women carry little handbags and that a certain percentage must lose their handbags. One day he inserted an adversitement in the Lost and Found column of a New York newspaper, telling of a little black handbag lost on Fifth avenue, betwen 34th and 47th streets. His expectation was that this would bring him at least 100 handbags. Many of these would contain money, and he would reward each finder by paying him part of the money in the bag.

"But," lamented my acquaintance, "I didn't receive even one handbag in response to my advertisement. Thus I have shattered not only my faith in advertising, but in human nature itself. People aren't as honest as I expected. Surely somebody must have found a little black handbag that day. Why didn't he look in the Lost and-Found column and then return the bag to me?"

In a survey of careers chosen by students of the University of Wyoming it was learned that women selected their future occupations from idealistic reasons three times as often as men did. Men on the other hand, picked their work three times as often as women for practical reasons—usually having to do with -providing a comfortable living. And here was the interesting thing: Men who selected their future work from practical motives tended to rank highest in intelligence, while those who were actuated by idealistic motives tended to be lowest in the entire class. Among women students, however, exactly the reverse was true; the smarter they were, the more realistic and less practical were their motives.

Many suburban allotments still follow the practice of erecting massive brick gateposts with stone caps, at the entrance, even when there are no sewers or sidewalks. The comparatively slight cost of these posts is usually a fine investiment for the man with lots for sale. They give a touch of grandeur, which the prospective buyer subconsciously associates with the entire layout. He pictures the allotment all built up with palatial homes, winding curves, boxwood hedges, beautiful, carefully reared children, and pedigreed dogs.

CLOTHES FOR FOOTBALL GAME

We have nothing in France like your intercollegiate football games. Of course, we have sporting events, which, of late years, have been growing more and more popular and whose spectators include both the smartest and oldest names in French society. But a sporting event between two popular colleges or between the preparatory schools of the Army and the Navy, is unknown to us. I cannot imagine the Cadets of St.-Cyr playing football before thousands of cheering spectators, and I am sure that no one else could imagine it either.

To be present at such an occasion, in America, is a privilege for any European, and my participation as audience, during my last visit to the United States, remains among my most vivid impressions. Because these articles are supposed to deal with my views on clothes, I shall confine this one rigidly to that subject, though I should prefer to talk of the psychologic effect of such a crowd every thought in their minds concentrated upon one thing all at the same time.

As a whole, the feminine contingent struck me as indifferently dressed. It seemed to my masculine mind that one idea should have been uppermost in their minds when choosing a costume for such an occasion. This one thing was warmth. Yet I saw many shivering girls, and women plenty old enough to know better, who had made the mistake of choosing what they thought was smartest, or newest in their wardrobe, instead of what was warmest and most comfortable. Blue cheeks and red noses were their reward, and were deserved at that.

Termed "Ideal Costume"

The illustration shows what, in my opinion, would be the ideal costume for this event. It is a sport ensemble out of my collection. Two colors are used in the original model, soft leaf green and rose-beige. For an autumnal outdoor event, I should perhaps choose two stronger tones—a more decided green, for example, or a rich chestnut brown, with beige. The skirt, with a few plaits in front, but quite plain in the back so that it does not hurt it to sit on it for hours, is in a soft finished woolen material, a sort of cheviot. These diagonal cheviot weaves are extremely smart this fall. The jumper and sweater or cardigan jacket are in plain beige. The jacket is in the same material as the skirt, while the sweater is a tricot, with bands of the other color woven into it. Beaver, or its poor cousin nutria, is the trimming fur chosen to collar the jacket and to line and face the top coat, which is cut on rather ample lines, in order to fold well over the knees when one is sitting down. It is of the cheviot in the darker tone.

The top coat has easy sleeves, slipping easily over those of the jacket, and the entire costume gives a look of solid comfort, of appropriateness to the occasion, which produces exactly the right impression on the spectator, and gives the wearer that unasailable confidence which comes from a sense of being thoroughly well-dressed.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Peter, dear children, is a most unusual little boy. He loves to wander in the fields, talking with all the creatures he finds there. Yes, talking with them! For Peter once saved the life of the Old Oak Tree and the tree, in gratitude, gave him the magic power of speech with all the peoples of the field and forest. Today he is picking berries for his lunch.

THE UNWINKING EYE

"Whew! how hot it is" groaned Peter, taking off his hat and mopping his wet brow. Then Peter peered into the pail that hung upon his arm, giving it an impatient little jerk.

"Here I have been picking berries for dear life for goodness knows how long, and yet it seems to me I have gathered not many more than enough to cover the bottom. At this rate I'll never get enough to make a good-sized pie."

The boy squinted up at the sun. "I wish you would roll under cover for a little while, Mister Sun!" muttered he. "But you won't—you are too contrary. Now that I want a little shade you are picking out the warmest rays you can find and sending them down to dance upon my head.

"But when it rains and I wish and wish for you to let out your sunbeams to play, you keep them hidden away beneath a heavy cloud when I need you most. Then you wouldn't smile down at me for anything in the world. If it wasn't so far to that old willow tree I'd take a nap in its shade. But I may as well finish this job now I've begun. Hurrah! There are some fine big blackberries right in front of me. Ouch! Ow! These brambles are sharp, but suppose I do get a few scratches! Those blackberries are worth it!"

The briars slapped and dug at Peter's hands and face—already one or two of them had left their mark upon his cheek—and the tricky trailers tried their best to trip him up. But the boy fought his way into the thicket. Now the big ripe blackberries were within reach. Peter stretched out his hand to pick them. But he never touched a finger to the prize he had worked so hard to win.

"Rrrrrrr!" What was that moving so rapidly right behind that berry cluster? What was making that strange, rattling sound? Oh! Peter caught his breath with a gasp. His arm remained stretched out, frozen into space. Shivery went up and down his spine. No wonder! Framed by the blackberry leaves was a great, beautiful, glittering eye—an eye with a stony stare, an eye that never so much as winked the while it gazed and gazed at the frightened boy.

MENU HINT

If you use potatoes and one other vegetable in your stew in the following menu you will have the mineral content for your family. A simple cake always makes a good dessert, although some authorities say that a meal never should end with something sweet and sticky, but that a dessert of that kind should invariably be followed by nuts or fruit.

Lamb Stew with Dumplings
Cheese and Apple Salad
Boston Brown Bread
Spice Cake Coffee

Today's Recipes

Dumplings—Mix and sift two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in two teaspoons of butter with the tips of the fingers, add two-thirds cup of milk gradually, using a knife for mixing.

Cheese and Apple Salad—Wipe and pare eating apples, shape with a vegetable cutter or cut in small pieces, having twenty-four small balls. Marinate with French dressing. Mash one cream cheese and add one teaspoon each of Worcestershire sauce and salt and one tablespoon of chopped canned pimento. Shape into twelve balls the same size as the apple balls. Arrange on lettuce leaves and garnish with strips of pimento. Serve with French dressing.

Spice Cake—One cup sugar, one-half cup lard, one-half cup molasses, two eggs, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, a little salt, one scant cup hot water, two teaspoons soda, two and one-half cups flour. Stir well.

Suggestions

Baked Meat Dumplings

Make a dough as for shortcake, roll out, and cut in squares. Take one cup of cold boiled ham or other meat, one cup of bread crumbs, two eggs, pepper, salt and butter to season. Beat as well together and place one large spoonful in the center of each square, bring the corners all together in the center and pinch them so they will hold. Bake in quick oven.

Use Silk

Use silk thread for basting when sewing on velvet. It will leave no marks.

QUICK OMELET

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Three eggs three tablespoons bread crumbs, three tablespoons milk, few grains of salt. Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs. To yolks add salt and bread-crumbs, mixed with milk. Cut and fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Cook in omelet or frying pan, with bacon fat, over a slow fire. When well puffed and delicately brown underneath, place pan in broiler and finish cooking. Fold and serve at once.

Urges Plan To Patch Up National Squabbles

By THEODORE E. BURTON
(United States Senator from Ohio)

(Theodore Elijah Burton was born at Jefferson, O., December 20, 1851. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and was elected a member of the fifty-first congress, 1889-1891. He served in the fifty-fourth to sixteen congresses, 1895 to 1909 from the twenty-first Ohio district, was elected to the sixty-first, but resigned upon his election to the United States senate for the term 1909 to 1915. Burton returned to the lower house in 1921, and has held a seat ever since. He has been a member of the Interparliamentary Union, and has participated, as such, in meeting in St. Louis, Geneva, Paris, The Hague, Vienna, Copenhagen and Berne.)

The United States will go as far as any country in the wide world in the limitation of armies and navies. It is the sincere desire of the great majorty of our population to take the lead in doing away with the large armies and navies which are a threat to peace and transquality.

We have reduced our standing army to less than 120,000—not more than one for every thousand of our population. In consonance with the Washington Agreement we scrapped—that is the treaty—hundreds of millions of dollars worth of warships, although we have the resources to build a navy which would have made many of the navies of the world look like a fishing fleet.

We do not wish to give a promise which shall be kept to the ear and broken to the hope. We are unwilling to give our approval to proposals which neither we can approve nor do we think other nations will approve.

I speak the sentiment of America when I say that we desire equality among nations. We desire that the classification into "strong" and "weak" may be done away, and that all should be equal in the forum of justice. As our great Chief Justice Marshall said more than a hundred years ago, "With us Russia and Geneva have equal consideration."

I wish to say that while I do not decry the importance of propositions for disarmament, the crux of the matter is treaties for conciliation and methods for the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations. Until there is some machinery for the settlement of quarrels, until there is security, disarmament is impossible. Better far than limiting the calibre of cannon is Locarno; much more effective than any plan for limiting armies and navies is a spirit of good-will and cooperation which shall prevail over the globe, and,

"Like gracious drops of heavenly dew, shall spread its blessings all abroad."

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"HE'S AN HONORABLE GENTLEMAN"

Says his sweetheart. But he wants her to live with him until he finishes his college course. Then they will be married. And she still has "perfect confidence" in him.

Following is her letter. It hardly seems possible anyone can be so unsophisticated:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am engaged to a boy who is in college and is preparing to be a lawyer. He is a perfect gentleman and his an enviable record for thrift, sobriety and general deportment. He has two years yet to complete his education, and as I have just finished mine he feels that matrimonial congeniality could not be perfect until he also finishes his. He therefore suggests that we defer our union until he finishes his, but he wants me to live with him clandestinely and marry at graduation. I have perfect confidence in him and regard him as incapable of a dishonorable act. Please advise. Susie."

My dear little girl, how can you have confidence in a man who would make you such a proposal? Don't you see he is asking you to be his wife in fact without the protection of the ceremony and license? The proposal is dishonorable and selfish on his part. Either keep away from him altogether or get married.

To whom does this little girl owe loyalty—her friend or her parents

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am nearly 16 and my girl friend is more than a year younger We have been geat chums for over six years, but my parents object to her. She is of good family. I learned once that 'a friend is one that knows all about you and loves you still.' Would you advise us to still be friends or for me to find another who would please my parents better?

HOPEFUL."

That's a rather hard question for me to answer, Hopeful. Usually parents know best, and maybe they see that this little friend is exerting an undersirable influence over you. On the other hand, it does seem hard to give up a friend of so many year's standing. I advise you to go with other girls, at least part of the time, and try hard to see to what your parents object.

To the girl who signs herself "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." I would say that you can't tell whether the young man loves you or not unless he tells you so. The fact that his parents like you should mean something to him, but usually if a man likes a maid he doesn't care what anyone else thinks.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

DOGS

Some woman who evidently had been as unfortunate in her choice of men friends as she was fortunate in her choice of a dog, made that oft-quoted speech: "The more I see of the men the better I like dogs."

Like all smart epigrams, the intimation is hardly true, for there are splendid men, as well as fine dogs, in the world.

The normal woman likes men as well as they like her, and that is a good deal. The antagonism between the sexes which we hear so much about is all tommy rot.

If a woman looks for friendship, comradeship, respect and love from men she'll get it, and if she is looking for trouble she'll be very apt to find it as well.

If, however, she is insatiable for unqualified and unquestioning loyalty she had better pin her faith to a dog.

I have never yet found a human being who sometimes will not question the opinion and judgment of the best beloved, and I have never yet known a human love that has always thought the loved one perfect.

Dogs seem to do this, but dogs, poor things, cannot talk, you know, and one never can tell just what they think when they caper about us all ready to go out with us and we send them back home disconsolate.

True, they go back with the most unhappy air, and they welcome one with effusion when one returns, but I'll wager they sometimes say a few things to themselves about us that we would not care to hear.

However, I am very fond of my dog, and I have seen an expression of unquestioning love and adoration in his eyes that I never expect to see in the eyes of any man. He is always about when I want him, and I can send him away when I grow tired of him. You will all agree in these particulars: He has the advantage over one's men friends.

For a long time the Pekinese spaniel has been the pet of society. Pierpont Morgan had one for many years that was always with him and generally in his arms.

Do you know that I sometimes think the reason we like dogs so well is because they are always flattering us?

Your dog tells you in dog language every day that you are the god who moves the world, that no one can compare with you, and the sun will cease to shine when you cease to be.

It's silent adoration, but none the less it is always incense before our egotism.

Memo: Women feel the need of this unquestioning love more than men, and that is why you see so many women making playthings and pets of dogs.

HE ROLLED IN HIS SLEEP

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Frank Harper, although a sailor for many years, never learned to swim. One afternoon, while taking a nap on the East River water front, he stretched, yawned, and turned over, but was rudely awakened when he fell into the water. Another sailor heard his lusty cries and pulled him out. He then went home and continued his nap undisturbed.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—A man on a street car here observed a locust on the back of a girl's coat. Carefully, so as not to frighten the girl, he brushed at it with his newspaper. The locust clung. "There's a bug bug on your back, lady," he told her. "I know, I put it there," the girl answered, "it's for style." "Can you beat that," said the man as he got off in confusion while the passengers laughed.

SURPRISE!

A well-known magician, who wore a goatee and mustache, happened one day to see a man who was his perfect double. The magician expected to use the double in a substitution trick.

"When I jump into the trunk," he said, "you jump out of your chair in the audience and come up on the stage, and the people will think it's me."

That evening the magician jumped into the trunk and closed the lid, and at the same instant the double arose in his seat and yelled, "Here I am"—but the trick "flopped" miserably.

The new hired man had shaved off his whiskers.

CENTRAL HIGH WILL OPEN GRID RELATIONS WITH "BABY FLYERS"

Central High School footballers, who have experienced a checkered career on the gridiron this season, winning, losing or tying games on alternate week-ends, will meet worthy competition Friday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field in the University of Dayton Preps.

This will also be the final opportunity to see the 1927 eleven in action at home this season as the closing Thanksgiving Day game with Springfield High will be played away.

Xenia is opening football relations with the "Baby Flyers" this year and hopes to celebrate in proper fashion by walking off the field victorious at the end of the little argument Friday.

Central's performance on the football field this year has been erratic to say the least. Three games have been won, three lost and two tied and a victory this week is needed if the season is to be termed successful.

Xenia looked the part of an inferior eleven against Troy High last week, submitting to the worst drubbing of the year. Troy's victory was by even a greater margin than Piqua's win over the Blue and White. As Troy is not considered in Piqua's class, something was virtually wrong with Xenia last week. Spirit was lacking and as a whole the team gave a dull exhibition.

Better things are looked for against the Preps as a return to form is anticipated. Many members of the team will be performing before a home crowd for the last time in their high school careers and all will wish to give their best in this contest.

Xenia has an old score to settle with the Preps. The Flyers have won every basketball game played with the Blue and White in the last several years and Xenia hopes to show that the Dayton eleven is not also superior in football.

ELEVEN SENIORS TO END GRID CAREERS

Scholastic football careers of six regulars and five other members of Central High School's football squad will be brought to a close Thanksgiving Day against Springfield High.

There are eleven seniors on the squad including William Clemans, center; Leroy Doak, end; Eddie Higgins, guard; Captain Robert Morton, halfback; Harold Murray, tackle; Abe Rakoff, guard, who is out for the season with an injured knee; and Clarence Keiter, Charles McDonald, Lawrence McPherson, William Rich and H. E. Schmidt, substithtes.

Officials for the Xenia-Dayton Preps game Friday will probably be: "Tubby" Sauer, Dayton, referee; Dr. A. E. Richards, Cedarville, umpire; and Paul Fuller, this city, headlinesman.

Friday's contest will start at 3 o'clock.

COURT PRACTICE HERE POSTPONED

Coach Victor Kolb postponed the initial basketball practice of the season, scheduled for Monday afternoon at Central High School.

A majority of the available court candidates are at present members of the football squad and Coach Kolb believes football is the paramount issue just now and that basketball must wait its turn.

Several other reasons influenced the postponement. The basketball floor in the gymnasium is being remarked with the lines painted and new goals must be erected. Baskets have been ordered but the shipment has not arrived.

STUDENTS TO RULE ON FOOTBALL FUTURE

Students comprising Division "A" of Antioch College are expected to take a vote soon on the question of putting football on probation at the college for another three years.

"A" Division students returned to school Monday for a five-week's period of study.

Division "B" approved the continuance of football by a large majority in a vote taken last week but the combined vote of both divisions will decide the question.

YOUTH IS DEAD

Joseph McFarland, 16, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McFarland, Cedarville, died Monday morning, following an operation for appendicitis. The young man had been taken ill only Thursday.

Funeral services will be held at the Nagley Funeral Home, Cedarville, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in Cedarville Cemetery.

BOWLING

Two new records were established in the Recreation League Monday night as the league-leading Fords won two out of three games from the second-place Studebaker Commanders. Studebakers rolled a team total of 1,002 pins in the middle game, exceeding the former record of 999 held by the Greene County Lumber Co., by three pins. Fords broke the previous record for high team three-game total by thirty-six pins. Winners rolled games of 903, 942 and 983 for a total of 2,828. The former league record of 2,792 was also held by the Fords. Gannon topped the Fords with a series of 595 white Malavazos led the losers with 568.

Buicks climbed out of last place in the league for the first time by defeating the Los Ramos Cigars the odd game in three Monday night, dropping the latter team to last position. Wagner was best for the Buicks with a series of 612 while Highley led the losers with 549. Box score Fords-Studebakers match:

TRIAL OF $50,000 DAMAGE ACTION TO START IN DAYTON

Trial of the $50,000 damage suit filed by John Simison, Dayton Ave., as father and administrator of the estate of Eleanor Simison, deceased, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, was scheduled to begin in United States District Court in Dayton Tuesday morning.

The action was brought in the Greene County Common Pleas Court April 11 but was later ordered removed to the federal court for trial.

The suit is based on a grade crossing crash at the W. Main St. crossing December 18, 1926 in which Eleanor Simison, Dayton Ave., lost her life.

Decedent, an invited guest in an auto driven by Raymond Stiles, the petition stated, was killed instantly when the car collided with a southbound extra fare, through Pennsylvania passenger train, traveling two hours late from St. Louis, Mo., to New York City.

It is charged a view of the rails was obstructed on both the north and south sides by buildings and was further impeded by a freight car standing on a siding.

The railroad company is charged with being negligible in failing to properly protect the crossing. Plaintiff also claims the electric bell, designed as a warning, was out of order and did not ring.

Attorneys C. L. Darlington and F. L. Johnson represent the administrator.

FAMILY PAPERS OF PENNS DISCOVERED IN OLD IRON CHEST

WINDSOR, Eng., Nov. 15.—Discovery of numerous documents belonging to the Penn family, the family from which came William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, U. S. A., is reported to have been made by Edward Winkup, a Windsor art dealer.

Breaking open an old iron bound chest which he had bought among numerous other antiques from a local resident Winkup found it packed tight with musty old documents, oil and water color painting, and several locks of hair.

On the back of a miniature found in the chest was the inscription: "This portrait of the Hon. Lady Juliana Penn, by George Romney, Earl of Pomfret. Romney, the inscription revealed, was paid $5 to paint it. The back of a water color bore the inscription: "An old cottage at Stoke, Eng. A gift to Lady Penn, from Henry Raeburn on his visit to Stoke Court, 1785." There were also one or two sketches bearing the signature and date "David Cox, 1827."

There were a number of locks of hair believed to belong to William Penn and his wife. Some of the hair was wrapped in Penn's invitation to the Coronation of William the Third in Westminister Abbey. This gives the number of his seat at the ceremony.

A Book of Devotions, dated 1639, contained the name of William Penn, and of other members of his family.

American art experts are expected to attempt to acquire the relics for America.

XENIA AUTO DEALER TO VISIT FACTORY

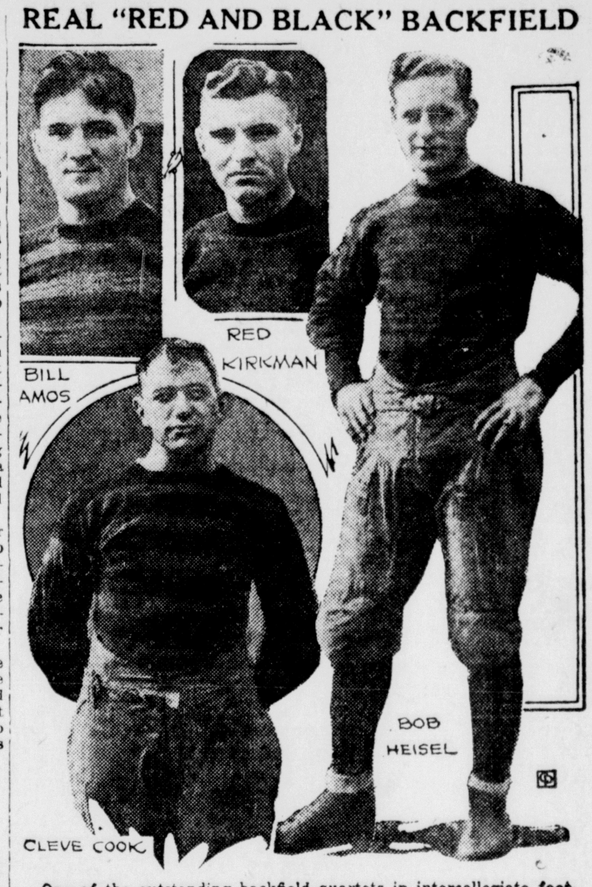

J. B. Bice, of the Xenia Garage Co., S. Detroit St., will leave on a special train from Dayton Wednesday morning as a member of a party of 150 Buick dealers from the Cincinnati district, for a week's business visit and inspection of the General Motors Corp. plant at Flint, Mich.

Mr. Bice will be the only local representative at the nation-wide gathering of auto dealers. The dealers expect to tour the plants, visit the proofing ground and watch actual tests designed to demonstate the speed, power and durability of many makes of automobiles.

DISCUSS SUFFRAGE

REAL "RED AND BLACK" BACKFIELD

One of the outstanding backfield quartets in intercollegiate football this fall is that of Washington and Jefferson's eleven which ranks as one of the four leading teams in the east. The "Four Patriots" are Bill Amos, fullback; Bob Heisel, halfback; Cleve Cook, right halfback, and "Red" Kirkman, quarterback. The school colors of W. and J. are red and black, Amos and Heisel have black hair while Cook and Kirkman sport fiery-hued locks.

IOWA PLANNING TO MINE ITS OWN COAL FOR USE OF STATE

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 15.—The state of Iowa plans to go into the coal mining business on its own. In doing so Iowa will follow the example of some of the other state governments. Kansas, the state officials pointed out, has mined coal for its own institutions for years.

Whether the recent coal strike in Iowa fields is responsible for the state's action was not stated. However, this year the state purchased from Kentucky and other non-union fields thousands of tons of coal that ordinarily would have come from mines within the state.

State As Customer

More than 125,000 tons of coal are used each year in state maintained institutions, and the executive council believes the taxpayers will be saved a considerable amount of money if the natural resources on state-owned property are used.

The present proposal calls for mining coal on land located about ten miles from Des Moines. The property at the present time is utilized as a state game preserve and fish hatchery. Prison labor would be used in the work, it was said, the prisoners receiving a nominal sum for their labor.

Build New Prison

There is also a possibility that a new state penitentiary would be erected near Des Moines if this move is made. At present the penitentiary is located at Ford Madison, in the extreme southeastern corner of the state, while the men's reformatory is at Anamosa, in the east central section.

It is pointed out that a centrally located prison would mean a saving over a long period of years in railroad fare incurred in transporting prisoners from distant parts of the state to the present penitentiaries.

HIGHWAY OF PALMS TO BE ADVERTISED

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15. — The "Highway of Palms" is the appropriate name conferred on the East Dixie Highway between Jacksonville and Miami at the joint meeting of the Chambers of Commerce of the east coast cities along the route.

The name was suggested by Mayor E. G. Sewell of Miami. The cities are planning an advertising campaign of the scenic attractions of this route and will circulate 10,000 road maps with leading information about the Highway for motorists.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15.—French aviators believe that Miami should be the headquarters for aviation in the United States, especially for countries south of the United States and Spain, according to Joe Frank, captain of the Harvey Seeds Post Drum and Bugle Corps, who won first honors at the national convention in France.

The favorable all year round flying conditions about Miami and the southerly Atlantic have been stressed by European airmen.

GRID SQUAD QUITS FOR LACK OF FOOD

BETHANY, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Reports reaching here of the disbandment of the high school football team at Centerville, Pa., due to lack of sufficient food to keep the players in trim were confirmed by O. A. Rodefer, principal of the high school, and a former student at Bethany college here.

The report covering the cancellation of Centerville's games for the remainder of the football season is correct, Rodefer said.

The football team was forced to disband because the players—who are sons of union miners made idle when the Vesta Coal Company mines went non-union are not receiving the proper amount of food to keep them physically fit.

The boys' fathers quit work when the Vesta Company started its open shop policy, and are unable to provide the right kind of food and sufficient quantities for their families. Those players who are the sons of union miners simply lack the necessary stamina when they get into the game, Rodefer declares.

Other school officials join with Rodefer in declaring that the mine dispute is responsible for the situation that made it necessary for Coach W. M. Bebout, to disband the team and call off the November games.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S. which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

HEALTH SEAL BONDS FEATURE OF XMAS SEAL SALE IS SAID

Christmas Seal Bonds, in denominations of $5.00 and $10.00, "as a sound investment in public health" as expressed by a member of the local Anti-Tuberculosis Seal Committee, will be offered in the seals sales in Greene County.

Each "bond" bears twelve coupons and the "interest" consists in participating in improvement of the well-being of Greene County.

The other feature of the seal drive is the effort to acquaint the people of Greene County with the urgent necessity for anti-tuberculosis work, here and now, the committee points out. The goal in the local drive is $1,500 and work to be accomplished, it is hoped, includes the purchase of scales for every school in the county and clinics for several parts of the county.

"The primary goal, however, is not the mere sale of 'bonds' and seals, but education," a committee member declared Monday. Even the sale of seals by mail this year will be undertaken in a new manner.

Eight hundred people will receive a letter stating the object of the campaign and a sample sheet of seals. The letter states specifically that the seals are sent without obligation. The recipient may not care to buy any seals or again he may want more than the number sent. The purpose of the letter is, first of all, to tell people what the seals are for.

GOVERNMENT ADDS TO LIVESTOCK SHOW

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 15—The federal and state governments will add exhibits and lectures to the educational program of Cleveland's third annual Livestock and Agricultural Exposition, Nov. 15 to 19 and a number of prominent officials will be in attendance, A. Z. Baker, show manager, has announced.

To officially open the show, City Manager W. R. Hopkins will pen a message announcing the show to President Calvin Coolidge, attach it to the leg of a homing pigeon and release it to fly eastward to Washington.

The navy department will send an exhibit of homing pigeons from Antacostia naval yards and a group of pictures. Pigeons have been of particular value to the navy since airplanes came into use, for carrying messages to shore.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Answers to Correspondents

Duodenal and Stomach Ulcers

G.—Yes, duodenal and stomach ulcers are curable by adequate medicinal treatment (which means largely adequate dietetic treatment). The treatment consists first of all of frequent feedings. I will give you some data right now from an article by Dr. Vanderhoof, in the A. M. A. Journal.

"1. The ideal food, as outlined by Sippy, and used by a great many physicians, is two ounces each of cream and sweet milk, to which is added ten grains of sodium citrate, given once every hour from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. In the average instance of chronic duodenal ulcer, however, six feedings a day suffice, and the patient is instructed never to go more than three hours, while awake, without putting food into the stomach. The food between meals and at bedtime may consist of a glass of sweet milk or a milk-shake with egg. When this is not convenient, a good substitute is cream cheese with crackers and butter.

"2. Diet.—Except for the acute cases and those in which there is hemorrhage, the patient is given a liberal diet, and it should be explained to the individual with a chronic duodenal ulcer, that he does not have 'indigestion' but, rather, too much digestion. These patients are told to eat a general diet with the exception of seven types of food, which are to be avoided: (1) all acids, such as vinegar, pickles, and sour foods; (2) raw fruits, especially apples, grapes and citrous fruits; (3) soups and meat extractives; (4) condiments and spices, such as an excess of salt and pepper, mustard and horseradish; (5) intense sweets, such as honey, molasses and candy; (6) very coarse foods, as nuts and corn, and (7) alcohol in every form, but especially sour wines, cider and grape juice. The best food for patients with ulcer is fat, such as cream, butter and olive oil, and the next food is albumen in some form, and they are told to partake freely of milk, eggs and all kinds of cooked meat.'"

The next parts of the treatment relate to the medication. For that you must see a physician.

3.—Duration of Treatment: "The treatment must be carried out regularly and persistently over a period of two years. If omitted for one or two days, is is conceivable that the healing of the ulcer may be delayed thirty days or more."

Other Treatments: This consists of the attempt to correct any other physical impairments, especially tonsils, sinuses and teeth.

Subsequent Care: "At the expiration of two years, all medication is discontinued. The patient is told he may eat what he wishes, except that he should avoid acids, intense sweet, and excess condiments, and especially cider, grape juice and sour wines. It is also advisable that a patient with a healed duodenal ulcer should not go too long without food, and many patients continue to eat between meals and at bedtime, although not with the exact regularity required during the period of treatment."

Don't have ulcer! It can be prevented by proper diet and proper hygiene otherwise. (Do you want our article on Balanced Diet? Send in a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.)

The Electronic "Cure"

The Abrams Electronic treatments are entirely worthless, according to all of the scientific tests made of them. The committee of the Scientific American investigated the claims for a year (so have many other scientists) and made public a report of the fact that they are worthless.

The machine is reputed to cure pneumonia and all sorts of diseases. Dr. Abrams himself died of pneumonia. It is considered so much of a fake that I know of one medical society at least that disbars its members who use it.

Tomorrow: Notes on Teeth.

NOTE: Please send in stamped, addressed envelope with requests for answers.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875. —Adv.

The Theater

When Vincent Youmans composed "Tea For Two" the song hit of "No, No, Nanette," he could not have anticipated that "two" was a digit that presaged litigation both for himself and his father, Vincent Youmans, Sr. Two actions have been filed by Mrs. Youmans the composer's chorus girl wife, in Chicago courts.

One is against the husband, asking separate maintenance and the other is a suit for $100,000 against Youmans, Sr., but its nature has not been disclosed. The "two" whom counsel for Mrs. Youmans blame for the separate maintenance suit, are twins, born to the couple about two and a half months ago, shortly after the Youmans had signed under a "separation contract." Mrs. Youmans' attorney said Youmans agreed to pay his wife $100 a week for herself and the "child" the birth of twins being an unlooked-for contingency. The mother now seeks larger weekly payments to meet the demands of the larger family.

"Flying cranks" are a new type of movie workmen developed by the boom in aviation pictures. They are now greatly in demand. "Flying cranks" are fellows who are experts at the camera and also capable airplane pilots. The latest air pictures demand unusual shots taken in mid air and only the boys adept at both camera and control stick are given the call for this kind of work.

NIGHT PATRONAGE AT LIBRARY GAINS

It has been a matter of interest to the staff of the County District library to see the results of the "open every night" rule which went into effect October 1.

For this purpose a daily record of readers using the library after 5:30 p. m., has been kept. This record shows that during October, 998 persons used the library after that time. Mondays and Saturdays were the favorite nights, although an average of about forty per night used it during the other days of the week.

GRASS ON FIRE

Firemen used chemicals in extinguishing burning grass and weeds in the rear of the property of Attorney Frank L. Johnson, N. Galloway St., at 1:20 o'clock Monday afternoon. No damage resulted. The blaze is thought to have resulted from the burning of rubbish in the rear of the premises.

RECEIVER NAMED

ATHENS, O., Nov. 15—The Hocking Domestic Coal Mining Company, employing about 100 men in normal times, and with property valued at more than $200,000, has been placed in the hands of a receiver in court here. It is said that the long strike caused the difficulties of the concern.

Farm Notes

MUST IMPORT APPLES

While the average Ohioan is eating four-fifths of a bushel of apples—which takes him a year—the Ohio apple grower is producing only two-fifths of a bushel. The rest are shipped into the state by rail, principally from two widely separated points, Washington and New York. The Ohio grower thus faces the competition of orchardists who sort, grade, and pack their fruit attractively.

According to Charles W. Hauck of the department of rural economics of the Ohio State University, the difference between the production and the consumption of apples in Ohio is due to two factors. One is the increase in the non-agricultural population and the other a decrease in the volume production of apples. Ohio produces fewer apples than it did in 1889, yet since that time city population has reached more than 84 per cent.

Only one-fifth of Ohio's apple trees are in commercial orchards. The remainder are on general farms, where they do not receive proper care and are being allowed to die without being replaced. Nor is the fruit from them scientifically cared for. The one-fifth in commercial orchards, on the other hand, are well cared for and replaced.

Hauck believes that with the dying of the trees on the general farm, the commercial orchardist will meet less competition from that source, the improved quality and careful packing will enable him to compete favorably with apples from the orchards of Washington and New York. To his distinct advantage is the fact that he can market his apples at the roadside or after a short haul by truck to the nearest large Ohio city.

NO MORE CONCERTS

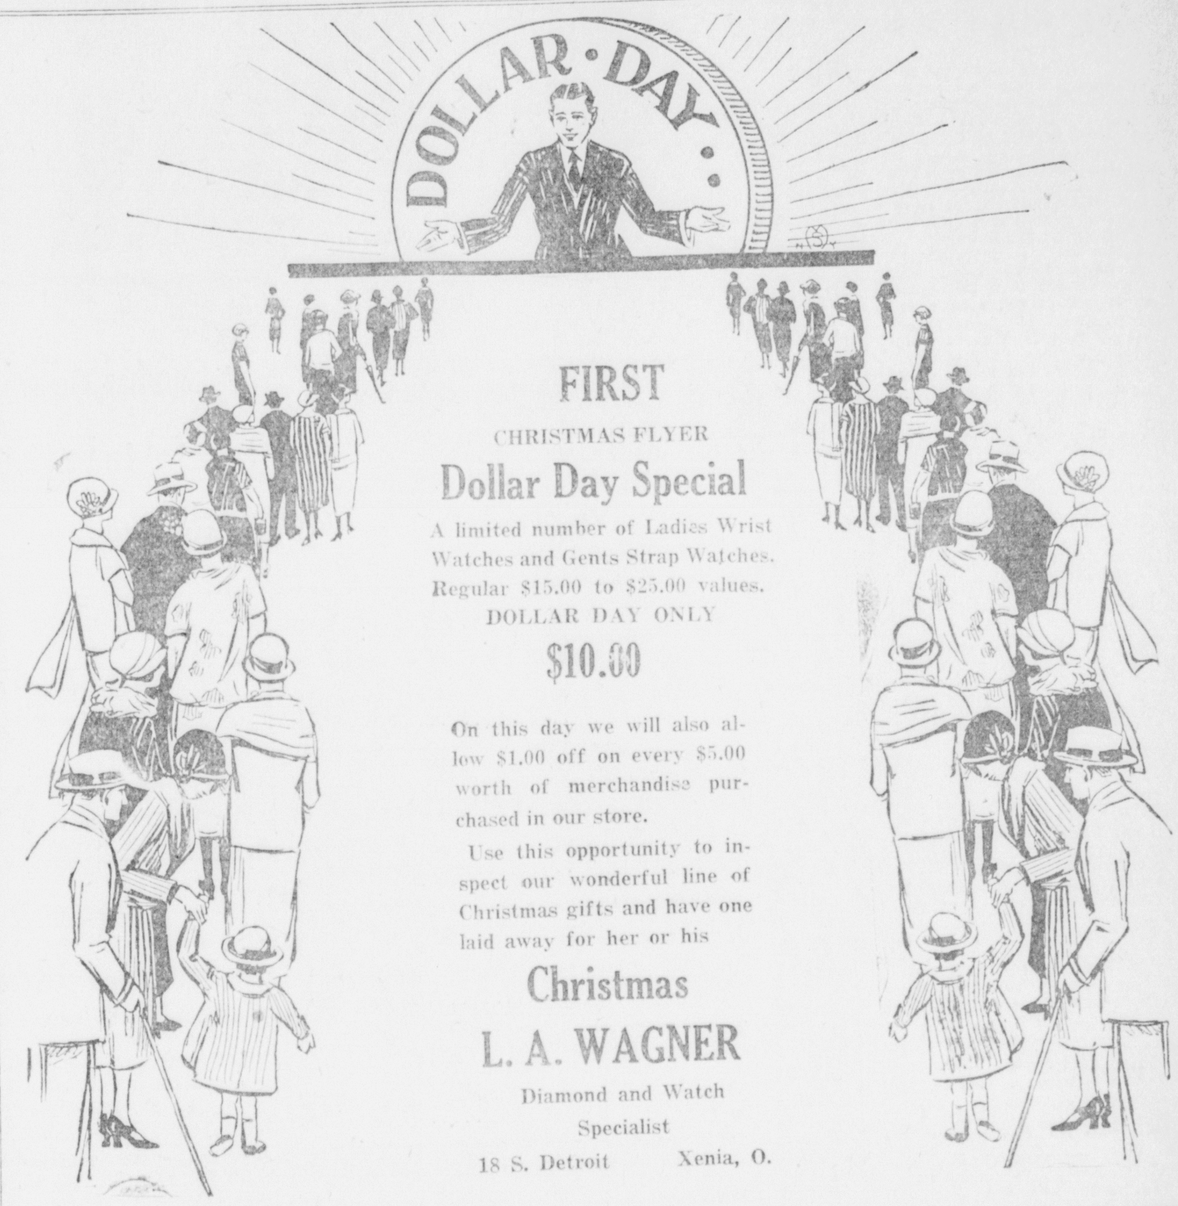

A southern storekeeper, who was also justice of the peace, was sitting in front of his store when a colored man drove up.

"Say, squire," the latter announced, "dat woman you married me to las' week has ten chillun, an' every one ob dem plays some kin' ob a musical inst'ument."

"Why, that's a regular band, Mose," replied the justice. "Do you want me to send off and get you a horn too?"

"No, suh," was the dismal response. "Ah wants to git disbanded."

CANDIDATES SLOW IN FILING EXPENSE ACCOUNTS IS SAID

Reluctance is noted on the part of candidates at the election last Tuesday to file expense statements, according to R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board of elections.

Candidates, whether successful or defeated, are required by law to file itemized statements of campaign receipts and expenditures with the election board officials within ten days after the election.

The time expires Friday, November 18, and whereas it is estimated there were more than 230 candidates for public office over the county at the election, only five candidates have filed expense accounts.

None of the five in question listed receipts and the expenses aggregated only $4.50.

E. J. Kelsey, candidate for Spring Valley Twp. trustee, expended $2.50 and C. M. Mussetter, Caesarcreek Twp. trustee spent $2 their accounts revealed.

A. D. Thomas and Homer M. Spahr, New Jasper Twp. trustee candidates, and H. E. Bales, successful candidate for re-election on the Greene County Board of Education, listed no receipts or expenditures.

LICENSE BUSINESS ENJOYS BIG BOOST

One hundred and eight hunting licenses were issued Monday by Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam on the eve of the opening of the hare and rabbit hunting season, establishing a new record for a single day's issuance.

The office was deluged the entire day with applications for licenses. To date this year 315 licenses have been purchased at the clerk of court's office.

The open season for hares and rabbits began Tuesday and would-be nimrods expect the animals to be plentiful.

Carpenter was arrested at his home Friday by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, following an attack upon his step-son, Raymond Angel, Thursday. The cause of the altercation was not learned.

Question: Why should school children receive emulsified cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because the strain of the study-period and playground uses up energy, and emulsified cod-liver oil not only provides energy but also protects with its vitamins.

PARENTS MUST SET EXAMPLE DECLARES RABBI GERSTEIN

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—Said to be the youngest rabbi in the United States, Rabbi I. Gerstein, who preached his first sermon at the Rosh Hashana services in the Oheb Zadek synagogue in Denver, is strong in his belief that to bring the young people back to the churches and synagogues of the nation, th eparents must be made to come first. This twenty-two-year-old rabbi declares:

"Parents set the example and children follow.

"Youth of today is no worse than it ever was. Times and customs have changed, but at heart the young people are no different from what their own parents were twenty years ago.

"Children seemed more religious and home-loving before the war, only because their parents were themselves greater stickers for their church and their fireside.

"You can't expect boys and girls whose parents spend their evenings playing cards, and who go to churches and synagogues only for show, to feel any great spiritual urge. Boys and girls must be trained from their earliest infancy to certain ideals of life and religion if they are to gro wup that way."

Rabbi Gerstein finished an eight year course at the Hebrew Theological college in Chicago in just six and one-half years.

FINED AFTER RAID REVEALS PROPERTY

Charged with illegal possession of furs, William H. Bodine, 24, Goes, was fined $50 and costs by R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace, Tuesday morning. He pleaded guilty.

Bodine was arrested in a raid on his home Monday night conducted by District Game Warden Karl Keller, assisted by O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman.

Cornwell, in his capacity as captain and commander of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, may also bring a charge of possessing stolen military property against Bodine.

An army blanket, thought to have been stolen from the company's Armory on E. Main St., was also found in his possession.

NEWSPAPER BLAMES CALLES FOR REVOLT HELD IN NICARAGUA

Charges Mexico With Fomenting Trouble For United States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The real object of Mexico in stirring up anti-American feeling in the Caribbean countries, and in promoting the Nicaraguan revolution, was to prevent the United States from constructing the new ocean-ocean canal across Nicaragua, the Washington Herald asserted today in continuing its expose of Mexican activities for the past year.

President Calles, the Herald stated, was desirous of establishing and maintaining in Nicaragua a government antagonistic to the United States, and for that reason financed and supported Dr. Juan B. Sacasa in his revolt against the Diaz government.

Today's installment describes the peace conference which the American state department had arranged between the Diaz and Sacasa forces at Corinto, and lays the blame for the failure of that conference directly at the door of the Mexican government. Two telegrams which the Herald asserts were obtained from the secret files of the Mexican foreign office are reproduced to support the charge.

FOURTEEN OHIOANS MASTER FARMERS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14—Fourteen Ohio farmers have been selected as the Master Farmers of the state for this year by the Ohio Farmer, agricultural magazine. Announcement of the selection was made at a meeting of the 4-H Club congress, held at Ohio State University, this week.

The list of the best farmers of the state being selected on efficiency in farming and community relations include: W. L. Biddle, Wauseon; F. C. Brown, Worthington; W. G. Farnsworth and W. W. Farnsworth of Waterville; John P. Gasson, Versailles; N. W. Lee, New London; Stanley Lee, Archibald; Walter Marion, Circleville; Glen G. McElroy, Irwin; Charles S. Neer, Mechanicsburg; M. L. Reutenik, Brooklyn Heights; W. N. Schaff, Bexley; C. B. Teegarden, Duvall; C. C. Terrell, New Vienna.

L. L. Rummell, editor of the Ohio Farmer, was the chairman in charge of the committee making the selections. Other members were Dean Alfred Vivian, of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University, and Earl G. Reed, agricultural agent of the New York Central Railroad. More than 120 farmers were nominated to be considered for Master Farmers.

TRANS-OCEAN ACES HOLD "CONVENTION"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Trans-Oceanic Flyers' Association, composed of those intrepid souls who made aerial history in the summer of 1927, scattered far and wide today after what they termed their "first annual convention."

Feted by President Coolidge and by official Washington generally, the thirteen men and Miss Ruth Elder left the capital today to return to their various planes for future aerial progress.

Col. Charles Lindbergh, decorated with the Hubbard medal last night and acclaimed as have few men in Washington ever been, went down into Virginia for a week's duck-hunting. He will be the guest of Gov. Harry Byrd.

Ruth Elder returned to New York where she expects to map out her plans for the immediate future. The Miss America of the air was genuinely thrilled by her reception in the capital. President Coolidge, she said, was "a darling," and Lindbergh "a peach."

PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—With weather conditions at sea reporte favorable, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, today was making last-minute adjustments to his plane in which he plans to fly to Australia, via Hawaii and other Pacific points. Giles said he may begin the flight tomorrow.

YOUNG FOLKS SHUN JAZZ AND DANCE WALTZ IN THIS HAMLET

Artists conception of the Jazz-less dance

By NORMAN E. BROWN

HARTSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 15—I have just dropped out of the land of jazz for a night—dropped out as completely as though I had taken some magic wand and turned back the calendar forty years.

I have enjoyed—keenly—a night of recreation with folk who are thrilled with the lively step of the quadrille, content with the music of the town fiddler and his "Old Dan Tucker," and aren't worried at all about the "modern tendencies" wrecking our social flivvers.

Dance in Historic Inn

Here, in an old inn, where Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry stopped on his long march to Lake Erie to engage in his memorable battle with the British, the years are rolled back two nights each week to the days when Lee Mason, now proprietor, was "a kid."

Hartstown is sixteen miles southwest of Meadville. The piano player, Gerald Mason, is imported from Meadville. It's a short drive nowadays but that ride drops you into the darkness and silence of a farcountry night. I made the trip with the piano player.

Ten miles from Meadville we pulled up at a cross-roads. The country store was dark. Where the blacksmith had been, the garage loomed—but black as well. We drove on.

Gather Around Wood Fire

"Pull up under that big elm," someone shouted when we drove up to the inn. "Looks like rain."

It might just as well have been a row of buggies and spring wagons as a row of gas buggies lined along the road.

In the "living room" of the inn a wood fire crackled. The ladies gathered around the stove. The men braved the chillier dance hall.

Merle Louterman resigned his bow. The music started. Harry Woodward, caller, sung out: "Get your partners for a quadrille." Six sets answered the call.

"Have had eleven sets in this same room," said Woodward.

The music begun.

"Salute your partners."

I looked at the dancers. All old folks? No. Not all. Two or three young folks. But the flappers were dancing with the older partners.

So were the Mr. Flappers.

"Same in the side."

"Join your hands and circle around."

Tires the Flappers

"It's usually the young folks ask the older ones to dance," said Woodward between calls.

"Meet your maid and promenade."

"Reason is that they have to have one of us old timers to keep them going right," Woodward again.

Later.

"Old Mother Finnegan," and Pete Groger calling. Little fellow and how he had danced: Intricate little quick steps that bothered his partners—including two maids who could enter any beauty contest.

Feet itching strains of the "Arkansas Traveler," "The Ocean Wave" and a dozen other old timers. Two o'clock in the morning. Anyone tired? The young folks.

"Meet your maid and promenade. Anywhere, I don't care. Down in the cellar in the old arm chair."

Oh yes, there were one or two modern dances.

"Mostly for a breathing spell for them young uns," said one resident who had lived within sight of the dance hall some forty-odd years.

BRITISH FLYERS ARE KEEN OVER AMERICA AIR COMPETITION

LONDON, Nov. 15—Aeronautical circles of Great Britain are showing unusual interest in the Daniel Guggenheim Safe Aircraft Competition recently been opened in America. Probably this is due to the reward of $100,000 which is offered to the winner. At any rate, five British aircraft firms have already entered the competition, and a number of others are urging their designers to construct a plane capable of meeting the requirements necessitated for entering the contest.

British Opinion Divided

French, Italian and German aircraft firms have also given notice that they will participate, if the prize has not been won by October 29th, 1929, when the entry list closes.

British aviation opinion is somewhat divided as to whether there is a possibility of any machne fulfilling the conditions laid down in the time limit whch has been imposed.

Test For Planes

The hardest task is considered to be that of finding a plane which can maintain horizontal flight at thirty-five miles an hour, one of the tests, it is feared that any plane capable of flying at thirty-five m. p. h. would be unable to carry the load and pass the other competition tests required.

Satisfaction is expressed among aviators, however, that the conditions are so severe, for they point out that insistence upon the requirements laid down will undoubtedly lead to a type of aircraft which will be as safe a vehicle as any in common use by road or rail today.

RUMOR AUTO MERGER AFTER DURANT VISIT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15—Great interest was aroused in financial circles here today because of a short and rather mysterious visit to the city by William C. Durant, prominent leader in the automotive industry. Reports were current in downtown brokerage circles that an automobile merger was in the making.

Among several concerns mentioned in connection with the report were the Peerless, Jordan, and Gardner groups. No confirmation or denial of such a plan could be obtained here from officers of the three companies mentioned, and Durant had left Cleveland this morning for a destination not disclosed. During his stay he refused to discuss his mission.

Recent heavy accumulation of Hupp Motor stock has been attributed by certain financial circles to Durant's activities.

MORROW WILL TAKE TRIP WITH CALLES

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow has accepted an invitation from President Calles to accompany him on a trip into the state of Nuevo Leon next week, it was learned today. The President and the American ambassador will be away from the capital for several days, it is understood.

The journey will be made in the famous "million dollar" presidential train recently purchased in the United States. While on this trip President Calles plans to inspect the irrigation works at San Martin, state of Nuevo Leon this week and then view the national highway now under construction between Saltillo and the border. He also plans to visit his ranch, outside Monterey.

"BIGGER DOLLAR DAY" SAYS HUTSLAR

G. R. HUTSLAR

"Bigger and better than ever" is the slogan of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association for "Dollar Day" to be held by Xenia business houses, Thursday, November 17.

"Xenia merchants are earnestly co-operating and doing everything in their power to make 'Dollar Day' this year a success for the future," said G. R. Hutslar, secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, Tuesday.

Bargains and special offers submitted by the merchants have received the "okeh" of a censoring committee of the Retail Merchants Association. This "okeh" insures the truth of the value of the item advertised and no two merchants are advertising the same items, although they may offer the same specials in their stores. This plan outlaws petty competition and gives the merchants an "even break" in the "Dollar Day" plan, it is believed.

More than forty individual merchants advertised in the double-page "spread" in The Gazette today. In addition to this advertising display for "Dollar Day" merchants are advertising their special items in separate advertising space.

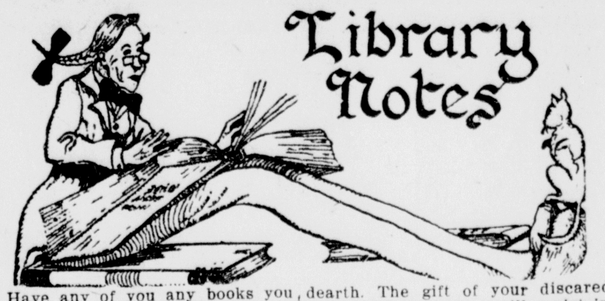

"The Xenia Retail Merchants' Association has answered the long-felt need for co-operation between Xenia merchants," Mr. Hutslar declared Tuesday. "'Dollar Day' this year, the first sponsored by the newly-organized body, is a sample of the aims and hopes for the Xenia business men, held by the association."

FREE MANOILESCU OF TREASON CHARGE

BUCHAREST, Nov. 15—Jubilant at the acquittal of Michael Manoilescu of a charge of high treason, supporters of former Crown Prince Carol today predicted the speedy return of Carol to the throne of Roumania.

The acquittal of the former secretary of state was considered as a serious defeat of Premier Bratianu under whose order Manoilescu was arrested and tried for complicity in a plot to place Carol on the throne now occupied by his six-year-old son, King Michael.

Manoilescu's trial, which began last Thursday, united all the leaders of the opposition to the Bratinu regime and they were unanimous in defending the right of Prince Carol to assume the throne he once renounced.

Have any of you any books you aren't using on your book shelves? Have you any magazines or newspapers in your cellar? If you have, we know of a place that could use them.

The Greene County Dist. Library needs more books for the children. As many as possible have been purchased but there is still a dearth. The gift of your discared books and magazines will assist in supplying duplicates to the various branches and stations as well as to the main children's rooms. Even old papers will help as they can be sold and the money used to buy new books for the juvenile department.

Won't you help the library celebrate Children's Book Week by helping it to put new children's books into its collection? If so call 365-R, leave your name and address and the library will call for your donations.

O. S. U. FRESHMEN PHYSICALLY GOOD

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15—A recent report issued by Dr. J. H. Nichols, head of the physical education department at Ohio State University, reveals that the freshmen entering the university the fall term were the best class physically for several years.

Approximately 86 per cent of the students examined were given Class B rating or slightly above the average physical level. About one of every twenty-four of the students were placed in Class A. Last year there were 78 per cent of the students placed in Class B but one of every ten were Class A rating.

A large portion of the men students showed a postural defect but the per cent was again lower than in previous years, Dr. Nichols states.

Eleven per cent of 279 students had flat feet according to the report while last year more then 14 per cent of the examined students were afflicted in this way.

The number of men greatly overweight also was less than last fall, Dr. Nichols says.

BOUGHT WATER FOR BOOZE

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15—Earl Paglow, of Lima is returning home today acquitted of the charges filed against him by federal dry agents who raided his home at Lima recently after they were tricked into buying a jug of water that they believed to be liquor.

"If you can sell water to a dry agent and get away with it, it's all right." This was the ruling passed down by United States Commissioner W. Gaines in the case of Paglow that was heard Thursday.

TO REMAIN PASSIVE

PARIS, Nov. 15—Baroness Haroudin De Reinach Werth, formerly Miss Helen Tennyson, of Pittsburgh, who divorced her French husband and remarried him only to get a legal separation later, told International News Service today she would not oppose the divorce action brought by her husband in the Rota Tribunal of the Vatican at Rome.

135 PERISH AS SHIP FOUNDERS

BOMBAY, Nov. 15—One hundred and thirty five persons perished today when the Coastal Launch Tukaram foundered in a violent storm sixty miles off Bombay.

Seven were rescued.

Ships were sent out to search for the Launch Jayanti which was also feared to have foundered in the gale.

Failure of the searching ships to locate the Jayanti led to apprehensions that the ninety six Indian passengers and all the crew had been drowned.

BRAZIL REPUBLIC IS CELEBRATING

The president gave a reception for the diplomatic corps.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night. —Adv.

VIRGINIA CORBIN BATTLES MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—A daughter, turned against her mother because she "spoiled" her parties and "squandered" her screen earnings, Virginia Lee Corbin, 16-yearlold blonde film star, today was seeking to have her mother removed as her guardian, and, incidentally, deprived of a tidy income from pictures.

The court action comes as an aftermath of Mrs. L. A. Corbin's admitted attempt to end her life by swallowing "enough poison to kill ten men" followed a dramatic quarrel with her actress-daughter.

HOT STUFF!

CLEVELAND, O.—A man walked into Parole Officer Wm. T. Reese's office and placed a stick of dynamite on his desk. "My small son found this and I don't know what to do with it," said the man. Reese didn't know what to do with it either. He called Policeman Bremer who offered to "drown" it, but he found it impossible to get folk to drive him to the lake when they learned what he planned to carry. Finally, after an hour Bremer walked to the lake.

Money Love

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

CHAPTER XIV

If there was one thing in the world that Lily Lexington knew absolutely nothing about, that one thing was housework.

She never had swept a room, washed a panful of dishes, or boiled a kettle of water in her life. She never had so much as aired her own bed or hung up her nightgowns in the clothes closet.

She got up in the morning to a clean house, to a well-cooked breakfast served to her on a bedside try, to a household of which she was the petted and coddled darling.

And so she laughed and shook her head at Pat's question.

"Could I do aall the work in that house? Why, Pat, I couldn't do the work in any house! I may as well be honest. If anyone gave me a basket of socks to be darned or a pan of dough to be made into loaves—well, I just wouldn't know how to set to work, that's all."

Then her face grew sober. "But I could learn, I suppose," she said, slowly. "I'm awfully clever at picking up things. . . . Why did you ask me if I'd live in a house like that?"

Pat neatly turned the car at the end of the street and started down the other side. "Because you said you'd marry me today," he told her. "And I wanted to give you some idea of what marrying me would mean. It would mean the hardest kind of work, day in and day out, every day in the year. You see that building next to our house?"

Lily nodded. It was a little two-story building with a grocery store occupying the first floor.

A barrel of potatoes and a wooden rack covered with baskets of pansies stood on the sidewalk before it. The windows were filled with parsley and carrots and oranges and turnips. Beyond them were shelves stacked with bright-colored cans and pasteboard boxes, and in the doorway stood a rosy-cheeked little wman with steel-rimmed spectacles pushed up on her forehead, a plaid shawl around her shoulders, and the whitest of starched white aprons, standing out from her little waiste.

"That's my mother, Lily," Pat said, quietly.

The little woman was not looking at them. She had an egg in her hand and she was studying the shell as if it were some rare discovery.

Pat laughed. "She's looking to see if the eggs are fresh or not," he said. "She always says she can tell a fresh egg by the look of the shell. I don't know whether she can or not, but she's a fine business woman."

"Business woman?" asked Lily. She did not look at all like Lily's notion of a business woman—that quaint little woman with her gray hair drawn back in an old-fashioned knot and a tiny plaid shawl pinned around her shoulders.

"Yeah," answered Pat, with his husky drawl. "That's our grocery store, and she helps Dad to run it, besides taking care of the house and bringing up three children. That is, she did bring up three of us—my two sisters and myself. We're all grown now, of course."

The car had passed the grocery and the small white house, with its neat brown shutters and its geraniums. But Lily turned her lovely head and looked back at the two buildings.

"Why, she must be marvelous, Pat, to keep up a house and help your father, too!" she cried, her eyes meeting his in a look of admiring wonder. "My mother keeps two maids and a laundress and a cleaning woman all the time!"

"Besides me," said Pat with an old smile. "I've promised to whitewash the basement for her this week. She explained that she wanted the house all cleaned up because her daughter was getting married the tenth of June."

Lily was silent. Somehow his words seemed to build up a wall between them once more. . . . He was the man who drove her father's car and took orders from her mother. The man who was to help clean the house for her wedding—her marriageto Staley Drummond.

"Pat, let's not talk about my mother or your mother—or anyone but you and me," she said with a kind of little wailing cry. "Let's go and get married and think of everybody else afterward. . . . Pat, do you like me, no foolin'? I've run after you so much, myself, that sometimes it seems to me that all the love is on my side."

His big tanned hand, gripping hers so that she cried out with the sudden pain of it, answered that question for her.

"Well, then, why don't we get married—now—today?"

Pat's fingers found the engagement ring on her hand and turned it. "That's why, for one reason. Because you're engaged to Drummond," he said. "Another reason is that I couldn't afford to have a wife like you, Lily. You'd go downtown and buy a hat and a manicure, and my salary for a week would be shot. See?"

Lily looked at her manicured fingers, their nails like bits of almond-shaped coral, their skin like white velvet. Lovely soft hands that were almost as useless as the hands of a doll. . . . Hands that never had held anything heavier than a golf stick, or done any work more tiring than shuffling a deck of cards.

"You'd be the most unhappy girl in the world—married to me," Pat was saying now. "You wouldn't understand my way of living and my kind of folks any more than I can understand your kind. You wouldn't like my friends—"

"I'd love them!" Lily broke in passionately. "I'd loce them because they were your friends!"

They were going down another little side street, and all at once Pat turned the car into a driveway and stopped before a red brick building with big white letters painted across its front: "JETTERSON'S AUTO LIVERY."

"This," said Pat, waving his hand toward the building and grinning, "is the home of the Mercury Cab Company, and the place where yours truly is putting together the neatest little piston ring that was ever perfected." He honked the horn, and after a minute the doors of the garage sild back.

The car rolled into the gasoline-scented dimness, and Pat jumped out and vanished into an office at the right of the doorway.

In a minute or two he appeared, and with him was a short blonde man with a nice good-natured face who smiled broadly at Lily. He did not take off his checked cap nor remove an unlighted cigar from his mouth when he shook hands with her.

"Miss Lexington, I want you to meet the best friend I have in the world—Roy Jetterson," said Pat, looking from one to the other of them.

"I certainly am pleased to meet you at last," Roy Jetterson said, pumping Lily's hand up and down with vim and vigor. "I certainly am!—I'd like you to meet the wife, too. She's a great little woman, Miss Lexington. You and Sadye would get along fine, wouldn't they, Pat, eh?"

Pat said nothing.

Silence fell upon the little group.

"I'm expectin' Sadye to drop in here most any minute," Roy Jetterson went on, after an uncomfortable pause. "She's going down town to buy herself a spring suit so she tells me this morning at breakfast. 'I'll be down about 9 for some jack," she says. Cool, eh?"

He winked at Lily, and Lily winked back at him. She liked him in spite of his loud cap and shirt, in spite of his loud way of talking. He seemed to be smart and pleasant and sincere.

But a second later, when Mrs. Roy Jetterson walked into the garage on the highest heels that Lily had ever seen, she disliked her thoroughly and completely.

She knew she was "Sayde" the minute she came in, for her husband called her by her name and threw an arm around her plump figure as she snuggled up against the wide, candy-striped silk shirt he wore.

Sadye Jetterson must have been 30 years old when Lily first met her, and she was dressed like a flapper of 17. Her skirts barely reached her plump knees and she wore the thinnest of pink chiffon stockings. Her black satin dress was too small for her and showed too plainly a figure that was all curves.

On the front of her black satin turban was a large pearl buckle and pearl earrings were screwed into her ears. She had a pretty pink, plump face and a high soprano voice. She giggled constantly when she talked.

"How do you do?" she greeted Lily, and laughed a little as she spoke. "Roy and I have heard so much about you. So much!"

"Is that so?" asked Lily, in a voice that was as hard and cold as a shower of hail stones. She hated the idea of Pat talking her over with these two friends of his. . . . And what had he told them about her? Had he told them how she had been running after him for weeks—climbing into his cab stealing his photograph and refusing to give it back to him?"

"I think we ought to go, Pat," she said, drawing herself up, and lifting her chin so that she seemed to look down from a great height upon the three people who stood beside the car. She held out her hand to the Jettersons and said good-bye to them without the shadow of a smile on her face.

"What do you mean by talking me over with those two people?" she asked Pat, furiously, the minute they were out in the sunshine once more. "Don't you know that a man ought never to discuss a woman with another man. . . . The idea of talking about me to that Jetterson man—and his wild-looking wife!"

"Is she wild-looking?" Pat asked mildly, taking a brier pipe from his pocket and putting it into his mouth. With his left hand he began to fill the bowl of it as he talked. "She's a mighty nice girl—Sadye Jetterson, whether she's wild-looking or not. She and Roy are my best friends, and ten minutes ago you said you'd love my friends because they were my friends. That's why I wanted you to see them—and you have seen them. But you don't even like them."

Lily shook her beautiful head. "I never could love Sadye Jetterson, and she never could be any friend of mine unless she wore longer skirts and stopped wearing pink stockings on the street. I think she's terrible."

Pat struck a match and lit his pipe—all this with his left hand, as he drove the car through the traffic with his right.

"Do clothes make so much difference? he asked, and Lily nodded.

"You can tell whether a woman's a lady or not, very often, just by the things she wears, and the way she wears them," she answered seriously.

"This day," she said a half hour later, when they stopped the car in a grassy lane that ran along beside an apple orchard, "was made just for us, Pat. The god of things-as-they-seldom - are must have decided to give us one perfect day to ourselves, and this is it. Just look at that bank of clouds—it's like silver."

But Pat had no eyes for the silver-white bank of clouds that lay along the eastern horizon.

He was looking at Lily and he was laughing to himself. "After all this talk about Sadye Jetterson's pink stockings, I notice you're wearing them yourself," he said with a chuckle.

It was true. Lily's stockings had been bought to match the sea-shell pink sports dress she wore. And they were just the color of Sadye Jetterson's chiffon ones!

"It's all right when they match your dress," she said. "And she had on a black dress. . . . What makes you be so horrid to me this morning, Pat?"

"You're not so tender and sweet to me," Pat replied. "You accuse me of talking about you to the Jettersons. You bawl me out for it. But it was Elizabeth Ertz who told them about you. I never mentioned you to them."

"And who is Elizabeth Ertz?" Lily wanted to know.

LIBRARY OBSERVES CHILDREN'S WEEK

Children's Book Week, when an effort is made to acquaint parents and others who buy books for children, in buying only the best and in knowing the best, is being observed this week.

The Greene County District Library is celebrating the week in two ways. First, it wants to end the week richer in books than it began it and second, wants to see the end of the week with the adults of the county richer in their knowledge of the wide field of literature for children.

To bring about the first, the library is appealing to the public for gifts of discarded books and magazines to assist the work of supplying duplicates to the various branches and stations and of increasing the children's book fund.

During the week a collection of children's books will be on exhibit at the library, while Miss Sandos, the county librarian, will be available from now to Christmas to talk over the problem of getting the right book to the right child. Parents are asked to make an appointment by calling 365-R.

DEATHS FROM BOOZE NOT OCCASIONED BY POISON IN ALCOHOL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Another heavy toll of poison liquor deaths in the approaching Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday season is confidently expected by officials of the federal prohibition bureau.

"But the deaths can't be laid at the door of the treasury department, on the ground that the government is enforcing the prohibition law by use of deadly poisons." Dr. J. M. Doran, dry chief, told International News Service today.

"Yes, there will be those who die from drinking but the casualties will result from raw moonshine and from over-indulgence—not from the denaturing elements that are placed in industrial alcohol to prevent its diversion."

Since last Christmas, when an epidemic of drinking party fatalities swept the big cities and aroused a strong congressional protest againts government-poisoned liquor, the treasury has materially reduced the poisonous denaturing concoctions put in alcohol.

Pyridine, a dangerous poison, used as the chief denaturant a year ago, was banned on instructions of Secretary Mellon who ordered the prohibition bureau to seek formulas, just as effective, but less dangerous. Alcohol, a petroleum product with a taste and odor like burnt crank case oil, was the answer.

The new formula went into effect last April. Despite efforts of high priced bootleg chemists and research in many illicit laboratories, the rum trust so far has failed to distill the oil taste out of alcohol denatured under the new system, according to Doran.

The government still uses four per cent wood alcohol, along with the other denaturant, but this volume is not considered deadly unless taken in unusual quantities. Chemists believe that it will be possible to eliminate all wood alcohol without decreasing the value of the formula.

Prohibition administrators have been warned to take unusual steps to suppress moonshining and diversions of alcohol during the Christmas season. The government is out for a "safe and sane" Christmas.

Doran issued a warning that up-to-date moonshine, produced under unsanitary conditions and by men unfamiliar with distilling, virtually is as poisonous as the old time denatured alcohol. Large quantities often times spell death or blindness.

DELIVERS STRONG SERMON AT CHURCH

The Rev. D. E. Gillespie delivered one of the strongest sermons of his series at the United Brethren Church Sunday evening when he spoke on "Counting the Cost."

He stressed how men are particular in the material world to count the cost before undertaking a great project, but pay little consideration to counting the cost of the "wages of sin."

There were several converts received at the close of the service. The pastor, the Rev. A. J. Furstenberger, had charge of the morning service, when a large group was received into membership and several were baptized.

The revival will continue until at least Wednesday night, when further announcement will be made.

The official board meeting will be held after the Wednesday evening service, if the meeting closes.

REMUS TRIAL OFFERS LEGAL SPECTACLE

DEFENDANT CAST IN DUAL ROLE PLANS TO PRESENT OWN CASE

Opening Statement Of Prisoner To Be Longest On Record

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 15.—A spectacular legal battle, unprecedented in American jurisprudence is developing in the Remus murder trial.

On the defense side there is George Remus, former Chicago criminal attorney and the biggest bootlegger this country ever heard of, playing the dual role of "Remus the defendant" and "Remus the lawyer." On the side of the prosecution is Charles P. Taft, 28 year old son of William Howard Taft, former president of the United States.

Already, with the trial only at the point where selection of the jury has hardly got well under way, Remus and Taft are at loggerheads, matching mind against mind—the brains of the business genius who once controlled a $100,000,000 illicit liquor traffic against that of the young and brilliant prosecuting attorney engaged in the biggest case of his career.

'Remus is going to make the opening statement in the case of state versus Remus," said Remus today, avoiding as usual, the first person pronoun.

"Remus' statement will be the longest ever made in a trial of this kind—about 12,500 words. It will bring home to the jury exactly what Remus means by his plea of transitory maniacal insanity."

Remus claims he was "transsitorially" or momentarily insane when he shot and killed his wife, Imogene, in Eden Park, Cincinnati, on October 6 last, while she was on her way to court to divorce him, his mind "exploded" he said.

Young Taft said he was fully prepared to cope with this plea and with any tactics the wily Remus may adopt in court. Taft took great care not to disclose the state's case or to even reveal who will be his principal witness.

"I will say, however, that the state's case will be limited to those who actually witnessed the murder unless Remus forces us to go further," declared Taft this morning. "If Remus attempts to prove, as he says he will, his allegations of a so-called conspiracy against him, designed and carried out by Mrs. Remus, Franklin L. Dodge, Jr. and others, it will be necessary of course, for the state to use many more witnesses."

Remus, on his part, says he "will tear things wide open" and "open the eyes of the people" with startling disclosures.

One of the surprising developments so far has been the fact that none of the state's important witnesses have made an appearance in the Hamilton County Court House where the trial is being held. Miss Ruth Holmes Remus, 19 year old daughter of the slain woman, has not showed up and she is not at the former home of her mother in the Alms Hotel; no trace in Cincinnati has been found of Mrs. Grace Campbell of Miami, Fla., the slain woman's sister; nothing has been seen of Mrs. Julia M. Brown, mother of the woman Remus killed or her brother, Harry Brown. It is understood they are receiving mail at a post office box at an outlying sub-station.

Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., "the man in the case" whom Remus charges stole his wife's love, is reported in hiding. He may be the state's principal witness. Remus has expressed a desire to get him on the stand for cross examination.

COMMUNIST PARTY EXPELS LEADERS

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—The names of Trotsky and Zinvoviev today were stricken from the roster of the Russian Communist party.

Official announcement to this effect was made last night.

It was also announced that the party's central committee had expelled from its midst Rakovsky, Kamenev and Smilga.

None of the ousted men will ever be allowed to hold an official position again. The expulsion prevents Trotsky from serving as chief of the concession committee and Kamenev from serving as Soviet ambassador to Rome.

DOOMED TO DIE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 15.—Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, having refused a reprieve, the four bandits convicted of the murder of George Condit, in Newark, during the hold up of the Reid Ice Cream company payroll last year, appear doomed to die this evening in the electric chair at the Trenton state prison.

An Editorial

A brighter day is dawning for Xenia and success is in store for this city's good merchants if the spirit of co-operation, now in the making, will only continue.

The unified action of Xenia merchants as expressed in a new idea Dollar Day for Thursday, which is being sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, represents a wholesome situation that has recently come about in the business life of the city.

Greene Countians are now given the picture of unified business interests, solidifying in a common merchandising program and working together on a special bargain day of supreme interest to every Xenia and Greene County citizen who is interested in making the family budget cover family expenses and leave something for the savings account.

In a short but active career the Xenia Retail Merchant's Association has given indications of being, probably, the most ambitious and energetic commercial group this city has ever known. The co-operation that is being exhibited, stands out more prominently than anything Xenia has ever experienced along this line.

In presenting a Dollar Day program for the buying public of Greene County, Thursday, these merchants are doing more than offering attractive merchandise at attractive prices. They are proving that such ambitious programs can be undertaken for the common good of both merchant and public, and with the complete sympathy and co-operation of each merchant. Competitors in business are working shoulder to shoulder to make the bargain Dollar Day a great success and to insure the bargain offers being real and attractive, a committee of merchants is guaranteeing the buying public satisfaction by censuring the special items offered by each store.

This is a new commercial situation in Xenia and many Xenians, not engaged in business, find in the situation much to cheer and much to congratulate. Let's hope the merchants are encouraged in their maiden effort by a bang-up, successful Dollar Day, and that the Merchants Association which is backing the project, may be strengthened by the loyal support of all who are interested in Xenia's future.

Mrs. Elliott was ordered to pay him $150 a month.

The husband charges the first payment has not been made.

INVENTOR SLAIN AT PHONE; BROTHER-IN-LAW BEING SOUGHT

Picturesque Citizen Believed Victim Of Family Quarrel

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 15—While Herbert O. Meisterknecht, picturesque and somewhat mysterious Highlands citizen lay dead with five bullets in his body, police today extended their search for his brother-in-law to nation-wide proportions.

Meisterknecht, inventor, former commander of a submarine in the German Imperial Navy, according to his own admission, and later an officer in the United States Navy, was assassinated while talking over the telephone with his attorney.

One bullet plowed through his brain and four others lodged in his body. His lawyer, found the inventor crumpled on the floor, one hand still clasping the telephone receiver.

On the testimony of neighbors who reported seeing a "small man run from the inventor's shop, jump into a blue sedan and speed away," authorities announced they were searching for Alexander Schreiber, of Cleveland.

Attorney Olde declared that Schreiber had just driven here from Cleveland and had quarreled bitterly with the inventor over what he termed "injustices" to Mrs. Meisterknecht.

Meisterknecht was credited with inventing a device for measuring the gasoline in a tank and was said to have been working on equipment to convert gasoline engines into fuel oil engines.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15—Police here today were seeking trace of Alex Schreiber, 38, of this city, for questioning, in connection with the death of Herbert Meisterknecht, 43, inventor, and former U. S. naval office at Highlands, N. J., Monday.

Meisterknecht was a former Clevelander.

Leonard Schreiber, a brother of Alex, said the latter left the Schreiber home here last Wednesday and wrote from Philadelphia several days later.

Friends of Meisterknecht here said Alex Schreiber had been displeased when his sister married the inventor because Meisterknecht had been divorced from a former wife by whom he had two children.

GRAND JURY PROBES ELECTION FRAUDS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—Grand jury investigation of alleged illegal registration prior to the mayoralty election here last week was to get under way today, with C. L. Davis and J. A. Goodown, from the attorney general's office, in charge.

Many voters, it is charged, registered at addresses other than those where they actually reside. George Ritter, Toledo, attorney, who has represented the attorney general during the probe thus far, has filed 104 affidavits concerning alleged irregularities in the registration.

OLD LINCOLN MOTOR CAR STOCKHOLDERS NAME FORDS IN SUIT

Ask $6,000,000 Damages —Allege Fords Failed To Keep Promise

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 15.—More than 1,800 stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor Car company headed by Henry M. and Wilfred C. Leland, filed suit for approximately $6,000,000 against Henry and Edsel ford in circuit court today. A forecast of this legal action was carried exclusively by International News Service several weeks ago.

The 1,800, all listed as plaintiffs in the case, charge that the Fords have failed to keep an agreement to reimburse them for the losses they suffered when the Lincoln Motor Car company was purchased by Henry Ford as a receiver's sale for $8,000,000.

"The Fords," the declaration asserts, "having secured control of the assets and business of the Lincoln Motor company by means of a promise and agreement to reimburse stockholders, and having failed to perform their agreement, they ought not be permitted to retain in their hands the property so acquired."

The court is asked to require the Fords to repay the stockholders.

The declaration sets forth that Henry and Edsel Ford performed that part of an agreement which required them to pay claims of merchandising and other creditors, but virtually ignored the stockholders claim.

The bill add, however, that the creditors who were paid, obtained their money because the Fords were forced to pay them, and continues:

"Thereafter Henry Ford permitted it to be announced in various newspapers, magazines and periodicals that he had voluntarily and as a matter of generosity paid said creditors in full, and permitted his alleged conduct in so doing to be characterized as an act of beneficene and generosity."

The declaration summarized asserts:

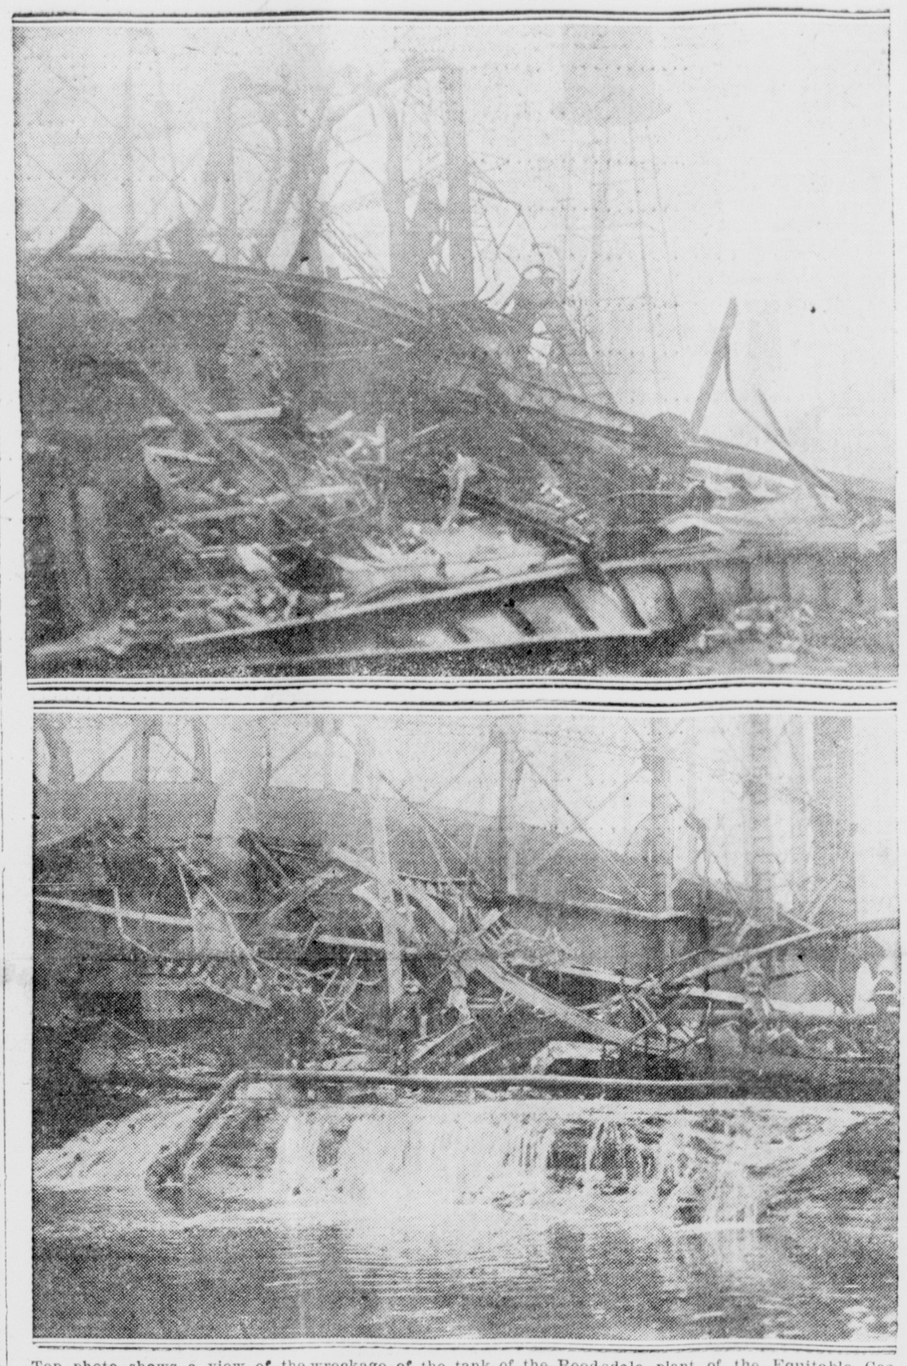

That due to industrial depression in 1920 there was a need for ready cash by the old Lincoln company.

That among other persons approached by the Lelands with reference to reorganization were the Fords.

WRECKAGE OF GAS TANK IN PITTSBURGH BLAST

Top photo shows a view of the wreckage of the tank of the Reedsdale plant of the Equitable Gas company at Pittsburgh, Pa., after the explosion which destroyed the vat and spread death and destruction throughout the neighborhood. Lower is a view of the tank, showing the twisted steel frame and water from broken mains pouring in. The blast rocked the city for miles, destroying property throughout for blocks throughout the section in which the gas tank was situated. Pictures rushed by airplane to Central Press.

ADMINISTRATION USES PRESSURE TO PREVENT BIG TAX REDUCTION

Proponents Of $400,000,000 Cut Virtually Lose Hopes —Smoot Changes Views After Talk With Coolidge —Flood Relief Worries Solons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. — A wave of pessimism swept the ranks of congressional advocates of a huge tax reduction program today as the administration began to exert pressure to hold down the cut.

With the house ways and means committee still in the preliminary stages of framing the new bill after exhaustive hearings, proponents of a tax cut of $400,000,000 had virtually abandoned hope of success. This program was originally proposed by Democratic leaders and was backed by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The real fight, it was indicated, would be between a revised Democratic house program for a $321,000,000 cut in the limitation of $225,000,000 set by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The action of Senator Smoot, (R), of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee, in changing his views after being called into conference by President Coolidge, was responsible for much of the pessimism of the group determined to have congress make the taxpayer a present something like the big tax cuts of previous years. Smoot said Mellon's recommendation should be accepted.

While Rep. William R. Green, (R) of Iowa, chairman of the ways and means committee, remained silent following his conference with Mr. Coolidge, he has expressed belief that the tax cut would be under $300,000,000.

The tremendous sentiment for adequate flood relief in the Mississippi valley, together with demands for a complete nation-wide flood-prevention program, have also caused many members of congress to recall their earlier predictions on tax reduction.

MAN WHO ASSISTED FAKE HOLD UP CAUGHT

SIDNEY, O., Nov. 15—James Kimmel, 27, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, today is held in the county jail here, under $10,000 bond, on a charge of participating in a "fake" holdup, whereby Alphonse Berry, Shelby County treasurer, obtained $37,000.

Berry reported last June that he had been held up and robbed of $37,000 in county funds. Later, however, he admitted that the holdup was "framed," and was sentenced to ten years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

He declared, that Kimmel, who assisted in the plot, took most of the money. Kimmel, arrested several days ago in Detroit, denied this, though he admits, according to police, that he participated in the robbery.

BELIEVE MANY MORE BODIES ARE BURIED IN BLAST WRECKAGE

Recovery Of Bodies Gigantic Task For Workers—Two Probes Started—Pittsburgh Council Appropriates Fund.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—With many dead believed still buried beneath tons of debris which only huge cranes can remove and with the recovered bodies standing at twenty-two, a dual investigation of the disastrous explosion of the Equitable Gas Company's plant here opened today.

County Coroner W. J. McGregor will attempt to fix the responsibility for the explosion, one of the worst here in years, and at the same time the Pennsylvania public service commission sent its secretary, H. D. Hirsch, here to make a survey.

Despite wild reports that the known death toll has risen as high as fifty, it was established definitely by International News Service that only twenty-two bodies have been removed. These are in the county morgue. It is quite generally agreed among rescue workers, however, that many dead still lie buried beneath fallen buildings.

An army of rescue workers labored through the night under the glare of a battery of mammoth searchlights to reach the buried victims, but their efforts were puny compared with the gigantic task before them.

"It is doubtful whether we can reach further bodies," acting fire Captain T. M. Rebele, in charge of the night detail, told International News Service, "until a big derrick is moved up to lift this mass of twisted steel."

Many persons at work in the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company, whose building stood on the lot adjoining the gas plant have not been accounted for and it is believed that they are under the building, which was crushed like paper when sections of the steel framework of the exploding gas tank fell upon it.

It is feared that several employes of the Clay Pot Company, working in the basement at the time, were drowned without a chance for escape when water from bursting mains flooded that part of the plant. Rescue workers fear that at twenty-three more bodies will be found in the wreckage there.

The injured, including persons cut by flying glass in some instances several miles from the scene of the explosion, will number about 600, according to Coroner McGregor, who said the hospitals had treated 480 victims and that the others received treatment in their own homes.

While the rescue work proceeded, Pittsburgh generously provided relief for persons made homeless. At a specikal session recommended by Mayor Charles H. Kline, the city council appropriated $100,000 to provide food and shelter for the homeless sufferers.

Regardless of where the responsibility for the explosion is placed, a vigorous attempt to have council pass an ordinance requiring the gas company to move all gas storage tanks from residential districts to the suburbs, will be made by Councilman Harry A. Little, he said today.

At the special council session, Little introduced a bill to that effect the purpose of which is to hold losses at a minimum in the event of future explosions. This time the effect of the blast was felt through out the downtown district as the plant is located across the river from the main business section. Thousands of plate glass windows crumbled as the tank let go.

Thirty large commercial houses and 200 home-owners were hard hit by the gas tornado, according to unofficial estimates. There were indications that little if any of the property damage would be met by insurance companies, as few fire policies included damage incited by concussion.

The loss in window glass alone was estimated by various insurance companies as low as $50,000 and as high as $150,000. Much of this loss is covered by special display window insurance.

Insurance officials said it was too early to estimate the total property damage with any degree of certainty. They said it might run as high as $10,000,000, or might fall far below this mark, depending upon the value of destroyed property which cannot yet be ascertained.

Today the district for five blocks on either side of the gas plant resembled war-torn France. A heavy artillery fire could have done no worse damage than the concussion when the 5,000,000 cubic foot gas tank let go. A spark from a blow torch in the hands of workmen repairing an adjoining tank is advanced by officials of the gas company as the probable cause.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—As a sequel to the disastrous gas tank explosion, another fatal accident occurred today near the Equitable Gas company's wrecked plant.

Frank Kuepferele, 30, foreman directing the hoisting of twisted steel girders from the wrecked Joseph Horne Company warehouse, was fatally injured when a mass of reinforcing steel fell on him from the hoist. His skull was fractured and he died a few minutes later in a hospital.

CAPPER AND M'NARY AMONG SPEAKERS AT MEETING OF GRANGE

National Body Meets At Cleveland On Wednesday

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, farm-bloc leader in congress for several years, and Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen farm-relief bill, are scheduled to address respective sessions of the national grange annual convention, which opens here Wednesday and continues for nine days.

Convening today for its third annual meeting, the Ohio Grange will hold business sessions and then merge into meetings with the national organization, starting tomorrow.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 farmers from all parts of the United States are expected to attend the joint convention, and early indications point to a determined effort on the part of the Grange to secure farm-relief measures from the next congress.

Commenting upon proposed farm-relief, L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, explained a plan which the Grange is sponsoring.

"The plan provides that, to start, one-half of the tariff rates should be made more applicable for the debenture value," he said.

"For example, the present tariff on wheat being 42 cents a co-operative association in Kansas ships wheat to Europe. Liverpool largely, fixes the world prices, less freight costs to reach that market.

"The exporter under our plan, would secure the Liverpool price, plus the export depenture value, which in this case would be 21 cents, or in other words, he and the American millers, if they wanted to secure wheat, would bid the world price, plus the value of the export debenture certificate."

The Ohio farm group, it is understood, will formulate resolutions seeking "better roads" and a "system of rural police."

Merchants Plan "Dollar Day" Here

Xenia's new live-wire Retail Merchants Association swung into action Tuesday to give Xenia and Greene County the best Dollar Day in the history of these special bargain days.

With the big special day set for Thursday, merchants Tuesday presented the most effective line-up for the bargain campaign that has ever been organized to sponsor a similar merchandising, occasion here.

With the Xenia Retail Merchants Association firmly behind the Dollar Day, with all merchants co-operating effectively in the sale day and with a committee of the organization censoring all special Dollar Day advertisements, business men were not only assured of a successful sale day but customers were guaranteed a wide assortment of bargain offerings.

A new advertising venture, in which merchants are pooling their publicity efforts on their choicest bargain offerings is an interesting feature of the Dollar Day campaign. Each merchant co-operating in the sale day, is using space in a double-page group advertisement in today's paper. Each advertisement announces three of the choicest bargains that come under the "dollar" heading for Thursday.

The double-page group will serve as a catalogue for Thursday bargain hunters. A committee of the organization is censuring all the advertisements for these special pages, eliminating duplications and guaranteeing the store patrons bargain merchandise by assuring the public that the items thus offered are real dollar bargains.

In this way the merchants hope to build up a foundation of co-operation with the buying public that will make Thursday a red letter day in the history of Xenia merchandising. In addition, however, to the group advertisements on Dollar Day specials, merchants are offering other attractive bargains for Dollar Day in their regular advertising space in this paper.

Many bargains, that cannot be called Dollar bargains, will be thrown on sale Thursday as an added feature of the day, so that the occasion will be a bargain-feast for all members of the family. Special mark-down prices on first-class merchandise, an almost unheard of thing in merchandising shortly before the holidays, is one way these merchants are going to give evidence of their faith in their customers as a means of proving the advantage of this sale to the buying public.

DANCING MOTHERS ARE HOME LOVERS

Pat Rooney III passing Pat Rooney, Jr., a trick cigar, while Mrs. Rooney looks on.

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Zip goes another of the popular misconceptions:

Dancing mothers, so long depicted as wild cats of a jazz age, really are the most home loving of women, whose chief thoughts devolve entirely upon the bringing up of happy families.

Leastwise, that is the state of affairs in the Rooney family, than whom there has been no more "dancinger." For the annals of the Rooneys having been running continuously with the annals of the variety stage for the past half century.

Ancestors Stage Folk

The first Pat Rooney, called the American "Harry Lauder" in his decade, was one of the highest priced comedians of the day. In 1873 he married Josie Granger, another performer of vaudeville. All of their five children followed in their footsteps.

Most outstanding of the group was Pat, Jr., who seemed to inherit the sparkle of the father. He married Marion Bent—also of the stage, and their team of Rooney and Bent became world famous.

But when Pat Rooney the Third came along, they resolved to give him the opportunities they never had. They planned his education with great care. At thirteen Pat went to the Peekskills Military Academy, not to become a soldier, but to learn algebra, French history and logic—subjects his dad never studied.

Young Pat Balks

It was expensive, keeping a home in the city, a boy at boarding school, and quarters on the road. So Pat, the father, although he was getting on in years, kept hight on dancing. And Marion Bent stepped right along with him.

The boy finished his prep school and was sent to college. But when he came home from a holiday not so long ago, he spilled over. He did not want to go back. He wanted to follow his dad's dance steps.

The father welcomed the son's suggestion. It was a tribute to his calling. And now the team of ma and pa, will be a team of the whole family.

Young Rooney, now nineteen, never took a dancing lesson—because his dad before him never took any. Yet the son has the same tricky feet, the same stage presence, and the same personality of both his parents.

And at home he is just a kid—trying to play tricks on the old man by palming off trick cigars, or tripping him up otherwise.

Some day another young Marion Bent may come along—and another line of the famous dancing family will be continued.

M'ANDREW TRIAL IS AGAIN POSTPONED; WRITER TESTIFIES

Says Chicago School Head Barred Funds For Old Ironsides

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—The long drawn out trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of Chicago's public school system, who is on the carpet before the board of education on charges of insubordination and spreading of pro-British propaganda in the schools, was marking time again today.

After a week's delay the sensational hearing got under way again yesterday, only to adjourn at the end of the session until tomorrow morning. And again, at the latest session, it was with difficulty that the members of the school board were kept awake.

Charles Grant Miller, a New York magazine writer and head of the Patriotic League for Preservation of American History, was the prosecution's star witness. He charged that McAndrew had refused to permit funds for the restoration of "Old Ironsides" to be solicited in the schools under his charge.

Miller headed the movement in 1926 to save "Old Ironsides."

He also charged that a body of American authors and professors of history had been entertained in London and that there had been a debate in the British Parliament over the cost of the entertainment.

Miller sought to show that the British government was directly connected with pro-British propaganda in American schools. The movement to distort American history followed close upon the World War, according to Miller.

FIREMEN SPEEDY IN TEST RUN MONDAY

Firemen established a new record of forty-three seconds in putting through a practice telephone call for a fire alarm pdeceding a regular bi-monthly test run early Monday night to Box No. 72, at the extreme end of S. Detroit St.

After the call was completed, the first fire truck arrived at the box from which the alarm was sent, in one minute and thirty seconds, showing the alarm was answered in two minutes and thirteen seconds after the call was made.

Similar test calls and runs are made every two weeks on Monday nights. Drills in the use of pumps, chemicals and ladders are held regularly every Monday night at the fire department to establish the greatest possible efficiency.

COLLEGE BOYS SERVE AS HIRED PARTNERS TO PAY EXPENSES

Dave Hilgers, below, and Fred Wilcox

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 15.—Dancing through life always has been a symbol of wasted opportunities, but Dave Hilgers and Fred Wilcox, two husky University of Wisconsin seniors, are dancing their way through college and finding it an unusually profitable occupation.

While their classmates are earning their board washing dishes or waiting on table, Hilgers and Wilcox are filling the roles of professional escorts.

The two students discovered this unique work by accident. They had filed their application for work at the university employment office.

One day a girl called who wanted to learn how to dance and she was willing to pay for it. Hilgers was called in and he delivered the goods so well that the girl asked him to take her to the next dance—for pay, of course.

The next day Wilcox was called in and a partnership formed. They established a rate of wages, and advertised.

"You bet it pays," says Wilcox. "You'd be surprised show many women there are who are willing to pay for the companionship of a decent young fellow.

"We get all sorts of requests. Dances predominate, but there are occasional theater invitations, and we often are invited to stay for dinner—all of which helps two struggling students."

FOOLING FUTURISTS

An international art hoax by which Paul Jordan Smith, well known author, fooled critics of the futurist school, is revealed by a writer in "The Bookman."

For nearly three years Mr. Smith has been exhibiting "pictures" in New York and Chicago under the name "Pavel Jerdanowitch". Roughly sketching on a piece of plasterboard what purported to be a female inhabitant of a South Sea island eating a banana, Mr. Smith daubed it with weird impressionistic colors and called his work "Yes, We Have no Bananas." Renaming the banana picture "Exaltation," Smith shipped it in the spring of 1925 to the exhibition of the independents held at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York. Within a month he received a letter from the "Revue du Vrai et du Beau" (Review of the True and the Beautiful) a Paris art journal, which later produced a picture of the painting.

Then Smith painted another alleged picture labeled it "Aspiration," and entered it in the no-jury exhibition at Marshall Field's in Chicago. Out of 480 entries the art critic of a leading Chicago newspaper selected it for production and lavish encomium. Mr. Smith knows nothing whatsoever about paintings, the hoax being, as he now confesses, a revenge upon certain ultra-modernists of the art world for their disparaging comments on the author's artist-wife, Sarah Bixby Smith, whose work was described by them as "of the old school".

BEING CIVILIZED

An ingenious propagandum asks us to draw a conclusion from the fact that beasts and savages do not know the emotion of love that it is an invention of civilized man, says a writer in the "Bookman.' Hence, by easy stages, we are led to the assumption that the more we love, the more civilized we are. Doubtless that is so, but the adjective is not always or unqualifiedly complimentary. Rheumatism and Bright's disease are failing peculiarly the property of civilized man, but they have yet to be indicated as the proofs of a high state of sensibility. If love is to be laid at civilization's door there is no good enough reason why we should not bracket it with those others of civilization's foundlings, such as, lets say, flat feet, suicide waves, crime, introspection, bad poetry, and the mtion pictures, rather than with the Olympic games, the Greek language, Shakespeare and Beethoven.

U. S. TRACTORS FOR AFRICA

Tractors are replacing oxen as the power unit of economy in South African agriculture despite their higher price, according to P. J. Stevenson, United States trade commissioner. In his opinion the tractor is being adopted by South African farmers because it reduces production costs and permits rapid work in the proper crop season.

Because of the long distance from this country, the tractor costs about twice as much in South Africa as in the United States, while gasoline prices are from two to three times greater. Figures of the Department of Commerce indicate that Africa generally is acknowledging the tractor as the established power unit. More tractors are being purchased from the United States.

The Way of the World

BEING ON TIME

It has been said that punctuality is the politeness of princes. Have you thought of your failure to be punctuate as a discourtesy? You may excuse yourself most talkatively, but the discourtesy is there. You have imposed upon others. You have been rankly selfish in not considering their time of value. You have kept men waiting. That is pure selfishness. The writer has heard men say that they waste hours of time waiting for others to keep appointments. Courtesy has fallen to low estate when we can't at least be prompt.

ARE REASONS REAL?

A California newspaper printed a series of interviews with prominent spinsters under the title "Why She Never Married." Are they telling why they never married or are they giving the reasons that they give when they are asked why they never married? The truth would be interesting. Anyway, women are so successful in the affairs of the world today that marriage has at last taken its modest place along with other possible careers.

EVOLUTION OF LAUGHTER

Showing how man has advanced in one way at least. Centuries ago physical deformity was laughed at. A cripple was the butt of a joke. Nobody today laughs at a cripple. But it is interesting to note how we have clung to the idea. We laugh when a man falls down stairs in a show—or on the ice, for that matter, so long as he isn't seriously hurt. We laugh when man is humiliated by the wind which blows off his hat. We still laugh at discomfiture. That is a step beyond laughing at natural infirmities. As man becomes more civilized he will not even laugh at temporary misfortune. The evolution of man's good nature is the evolution of his laughter.

COLLECTING DIMES

Did you ever try dime collecting. A year ago an Iowa woman started out to make ninety cents do a dollar's work. The other dime she put in a bank. The game appealed to her. It was easy. Her enthusiasm grew. At the end of the year she had saved 1,800 dimes. That's a good game. And that's thrift.

FRIENDSHIP

Ibsen, very thoughtful Norwegian, once said that it is a pity that great men can never really have friends. Even men as wise as Ibsen can be wrong. There is no greatness which is so great that there is no place for friendship. There are men who are intellectually so much above the most of their fellows that they are out of sympathy with many ideas that are commonly accepted. But the greatest men can make the truest friends.

The Daybook Of A New Yorker

By Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—There is a vendor of second-hand umbrellas on Park Row. He looks like a soiled and shop-worn Santa Claus. If you will listen to him, he will tell you stories of his encounters with the Red Skins in his youth. I don't know whether he really ever was an Indian fighter or whether he makes up his tales from remembering passage in the nickel novels of the 'Nineties. I suspect the latter; but at any rate he is one of the many lonely figures of metropolitan life, a man pathetically eager for an audience hungry for a sympathetic ear into which he can pour tales of past adventures which, perhaps he has never had.

It is related that the movie critics who attend the Thursday afternoon "pre-views" at Roxy's theatre have a hard time concentrating on the picture. It seems that the projecting room is ordinarily used as a dressing room by the chorus girls of Roxy's gang and that these young ladies just change their clothes there, movie critics or no movie critics.

Then there was that young man who got arrested for sleeping in the subway—an event the New York newspapers treated at length. He worked as a day laborer for $35 a week and as a messenger on his day off. He wanted his people back home to think that he was making good in a big way in the great metropolis. To save money to send to them he slept nightly in the subway trains. For clothing, he picked up odds and ends, checked them in various stores and picked them up again as the garments he was wearing went into dissolution. He solved the problems of toilette by getting his shaves and haircuts in the Bowery schools for barbers, where such service is free. He had reduced frugality to an art but his career was cut short by an unimaginative and unsympathetic policemen .....And so it goes in life: the policeman is always there to prevent us from realizing our most gorgeously happy dreams.

The new Supreme Court building is a vast edifice containing about twenty-five courtrooms. A newspaper reporter delegated to cover the news there is up against handicaps of time and space. One enterprising reporter bethought himself of a noble idea. He bought himself a pair of roller skates, and thus equipped, he sped swiftly from court to court. But the sedate gentlemen of the bench, unused to having people careening into their courts in this breezy fashion, put a stop to this method of locomotion. The reporter in question has asked permission to use a bicycle.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

A MODERN DIOGENES

I met a man in a Pullman car who said he was disgusted with newspaperd advertising and would never pin his faith to the want columns again. I inquired what had thus soured him on advertising, and here is his story:

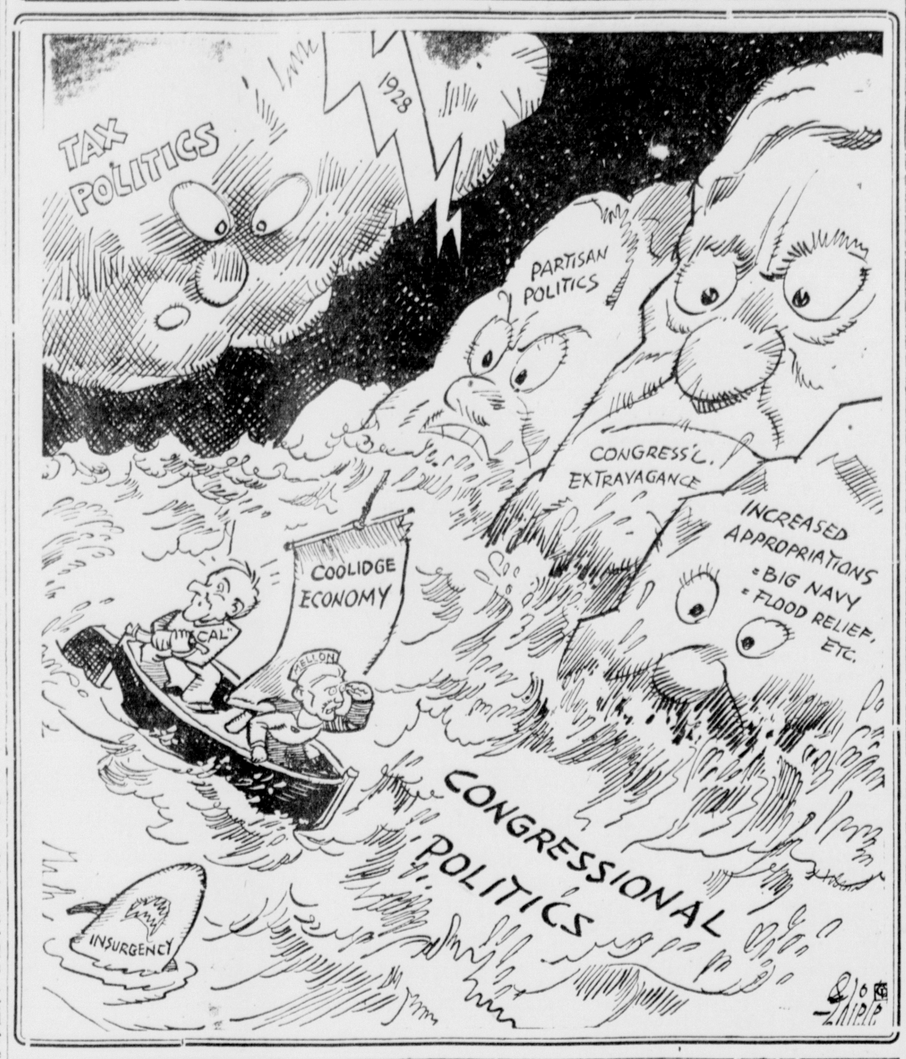

It had occured to him that all women carry little handbags and that a certain percentage must lose their handbags. One day he inserted an adversitement in the Lost and Found column of a New York newspaper, telling of a little black handbag lost on Fifth avenue, betwen 34th and 47th streets. His expectation was that this would bring him at least 100 handbags. Many of these would contain money, and he would reward each finder by paying him part of the money in the bag.

"But," lamented my acquaintance, "I didn't receive even one handbag in response to my advertisement. Thus I have shattered not only my faith in advertising, but in human nature itself. People aren't as honest as I expected. Surely somebody must have found a little black handbag that day. Why didn't he look in the Lost and-Found column and then return the bag to me?"

In a survey of careers chosen by students of the University of Wyoming it was learned that women selected their future occupations from idealistic reasons three times as often as men did. Men on the other hand, picked their work three times as often as women for practical reasons—usually having to do with providing a comfortable living. And here was the interesting thing: Men who selected their future work from practical motives tended to rank highest in intelligence, while those who were actuated by idealistic motives tended to be lowest in the entire class. Among women students, however, exactly the reverse was true; the smarter they were, the more realistic and less practical were their motives.

Many suburban allotments still follow the practice of erecting massive brick gateposts with stone caps, at the entrance, even when there are no sewers or sidewalks. The comparatively slight cost of these posts is usually a fine investiment for the man with lots for sale. They give a touch of grandeur, which the prospective buyer subconsciously associates with the entire layout. He pictures the allotment all built up with palatial homes, winding curves, boxwood hedges, beautiful, carefully reared children, and pedigreed dogs.

CLOTHES FOR FOOTBALL GAME

We have nothing in France like your intercollegiate football games. Of course, we have sporting events, which, of late years, have been growing more and more popular and whose spectators include both the smartest and oldest names in French society. But a sporting event between two popular colleges or between the preparatory schools of the Army and the Navy, is unknown to us. I cannot imagine the Cadets of St.-Cyr playing football before thousands of cheering spectators, and I am sure that no one else could imagine it either.

To be present at such an occasion, in America, is a privilege for any European, and my participation as audience, during my last visit to the United States, remains among my most vivid impressions. Because these articles are supposed to deal with my views on clothes, I shall confine this one rigidly to that subject, though I should prefer to talk of the psychologic effect of such a crowd every thought in their minds concentrated upon one thing all at the same time.

As a whole, the feminine contingent struck me as indifferently dressed. It seemed to my masculine mind that one idea should have been uppermost in their minds when choosing a costume for such an occasion. This one thing was warmth. Yet I saw many shivering girls, and women plenty old enough to know better, who had made the mistake of choosing what they thought was smartest, or newest in their wardrobe, instead of what was warmest and most comfortable. Blue cheeks and red noses were their reward, and were deserved at that.

Termed "Ideal Costume"

The illustration shows what, in my opinion, would be the ideal costume for this event. It is a sport ensemble out of my collection. Two colors are used in the original model, soft leaf green and rose-beige. For an autumnal outdoor event, I should perhaps choose two stronger tones—a more decided green, for example, or a rich chestnut brown, with beige. The skirt, with a few plaits in front, but quite plain in the back so that it does not hurt it to sit on it for hours, is in a soft finished woolen material, a sort of cheviot. These diagonal cheviot weaves are extremely smart this fall. The jumper and sweater or cardigan jacket are in plain beige. The jacket is in the same material as the skirt, while the sweater is a tricot, with bands of the other color woven into it. Beaver, or its poor cousin nutria, is the trimming fur chosen to collar the jacket and to line and face the top coat, which is cut on rather ample lines, in order to fold well over the knees when one is sitting down. It is of the cheviot in the darker tone.

The top coat has easy sleeves, slipping easily over those of the jacket, and the entire costume gives a look of solid comfort, of appropriateness to the occasion, which produces exactly the right impression on the spectator, and gives the wearer that unasailable confidence which comes from a sense of being thoroughly well-dressed.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Peter, dear children, is a most unusual little boy. He loves to wander in the fields, talking with all the creatures he finds there. Yes, talking with them! For Peter once saved the life of the Old Oak Tree and the tree, in gratitude, gave him the magic power of speech with all the peoples of the field and forest. Today he is picking berries for his lunch.

THE UNWINKING EYE

"Whew! how hot it is" groaned Peter, taking off his hat and mopping his wet brow. Then Peter peered into the pail that hung upon his arm, giving it an impatient little jerk.

"Here I have been picking berries for dear life for goodness knows how long, and yet it seems to me I have gathered not many more than enough to cover the bottom. At this rate I'll never get enough to make a good-sized pie."

The boy squinted up at the sun. "I wish you would roll under cover for a little while, Mister Sun!" muttered he. "But you won't—you are too contrary. Now that I want a little shade you are picking out the warmest rays you can find and sending them down to dance upon my head.

"But when it rains and I wish and wish for you to let out your sunbeams to play, you keep them hidden away beneath a heavy cloud when I need you most. Then you wouldn't smile down at me for anything in the world. If it wasn't so far to that old willow tree I'd take a nap in its shade. But I may as well finish this job now I've begun. Hurrah! There are some fine big blackberries right in front of me. Ouch! Ow! These brambles are sharp, but suppose I do get a few scratches! Those blackberries are worth it!"

The briars slapped and dug at Peter's hands and face—already one or two of them had left their mark upon his cheek—and the tricky trailers tried their best to trip him up. But the boy fought his way into the thicket. Now the big ripe blackberries were within reach. Peter stretched out his hand to pick them. But he never touched a finger to the prize he had worked so hard to win.

"Rrrrrrr!" What was that moving so rapidly right behind that berry cluster? What was making that strange, rattling sound? Oh! Peter caught his breath with a gasp. His arm remained stretched out, frozen into space. Shivery went up and down his spine. No wonder! Framed by the blackberry leaves was a great, beautiful, glittering eye—an eye with a stony stare, an eye that never so much as winked the while it gazed and gazed at the frightened boy.

MENU HINT

If you use potatoes and one other vegetable in your stew in the following menu you will have the mineral content for your family. A simple cake always makes a good dessert, although some authorities say that a meal never should end with something sweet and sticky, but that a dessert of that kind should invariably be followed by nuts or fruit.

Lamb Stew with Dumplings
Cheese and Apple Salad
Boston Brown Bread
Spice Cake Coffee

Today's Recipes

Dumplings—Mix and sift two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in two teaspoons of butter with the tips of the fingers, add two-thirds cup of milk gradually, using a knife for mixing.

Cheese and Apple Salad—Wipe and pare eating apples, shape with a vegetable cutter or cut in small pieces, having twenty-four small balls. Marinate with French dressing. Mash one cream cheese and add one teaspoon each of Worcestershire sauce and salt and one tablespoon of chopped canned pimento. Shape into twelve balls the same size as the apple balls. Arrange on lettuce leaves and garnish with strips of pimento. Serve with French dressing.

Spice Cake—One cup sugar, one-half cup lard, one-half cup molasses, two eggs, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, a little salt, one scant cup hot water, two teaspoons soda, two and one-half cups flour. Stir well.

Suggestions

Baked Meat Dumplings

Make a dough as for shortcake, roll out, and cut in squares. Take one cup of cold boiled ham or other meat, one cup of bread crumbs, two eggs, pepper, salt and butter to season. Beat as well together and place one large spoonful in the center of each square, bring the corners all together in the center and pinch them so they will hold. Bake in quick oven.

Use Silk

Use silk thread for basting when sewing on velvet. It will leave no marks.

QUICK OMELET

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Three eggs three tablespoons bread crumbs, three tablespoons milk, few grains of salt. Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs. To yolks add salt and bread-crumbs, mixed with milk. Cut and fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Cook in omelet or frying pan, with bacon fat, over a slow fire. When well puffed and delicately brown underneath, place pan in broiler and finish cooking. Fold and serve at once.

Urges Plan To Patch Up National Squabbles

By THEODORE E. BURTON
(United States Senator from Ohio)

(Theodore Elijah Burton was born at Jefferson, O., December 20, 1851. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and was elected a member of the fifty-first congress, 1889-1891. He served in the fifty-fourth to sixteen congresses, 1895 to 1909 from the twenty-first Ohio district, was elected to the sixty-first, but resigned upon his election to the United States senate for the term 1909 to 1915. Burton returned to the lower house in 1921, and has held a seat ever since. He has been a member of the Interparliamentary Union, and has participated, as such, in meeting in St. Louis, Geneva, Paris, The Hague, Vienna, Copenhagen and Berne.)

The United States will go as far as any country in the wide world in the limitation of armies and navies. It is the sincere desire of the great majorty of our population to take the lead in doing away with the large armies and navies which are a threat to peace and transquality.

We have reduced our standing army to less than 120,000—not more than one for every thousand of our population. In consonance with the Washington Agreement we scrapped—that is the treaty—hundreds of millions of dollars worth of warships, although we have the resources to build a navy which would have made many of the navies of the world look like a fishing fleet.

We do not wish to give a promise which shall be kept to the ear and broken to the hope. We are unwilling to give our approval to proposals which neither we can approve nor do we think other nations will approve.

I speak the sentiment of America when I say that we desire equality among nations. We desire that the classification into "strong" and "weak" may be done away, and that all should be equal in the forum of justice. As our great Chief Justice Marshall said more than a hundred years ago, "With us Russia and Geneva have equal consideration."

I wish to say that while I do not decry the importance of propositions for disarmament, the crux of the matter is treaties for conciliation and methods for the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations. Until there is some machinery for the settlement of quarrels, until there is security, disarmament is impossible. Better far than limiting the calibre of cannon is Locarno; much more effective than any plan for limiting armies and navies is a spirit of good-will and cooperation which shall prevail over the globe, and,

"Like gracious drops of heavenly dew, shall spread its blessings all abroad."

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"HE'S AN HONORABLE GENTLEMAN"

Says his sweetheart. But he wants her to live with him until he finishes his college course. Then they will be married. And she still has "perfect confidence" in him.

Following is her letter. It hardly seems possible anyone can be so unsophisticated:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am engaged to a boy who is in college and is preparing to be a lawyer. He is a perfect gentleman and his an enviable record for thrift, sobriety and general deportment . He has two years yet to complete his education, and as I have just finished mine he feels that matrimonial congeniality could not be perfect until he also finishes his. He therefore suggests that we defer our union until he finishes his, but he wants me to live with him clandestinely and marry at graduation. I have perfect confidence in him and regard him as incapable of a dishonorable act. Please advise. Susie."

My dear little girl, how can you have confidence in a man who would make you such a proposal? Don't you see he is asking you to be his wife in fact without the protection of the ceremony and license? The proposal is dishonorable and selfish on his part. Either keep away from him altogether or get married.

To whom does this little girl owe loyalty—her friend or her parents

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am nearly 16 and my girl friend is more than a year younger We have been geat chums for over six years, but my parents object to her. She is of good family. I learned once that 'a friend is one that knows all about you and loves you still.' Would you advise us to still be friends or for me to find another who would please my parents better?

HOPEFUL."

That's a rather hard question for me to answer, Hopeful. Usually parents know best, and maybe they see that this little friend is exerting an undersirable influence over you. On the other hand, it does seem hard to give up a friend of so many year's standing. I advise you to go with other girls, at least part of the time, and try hard to see to what your parents object.

To the girl who signs herself "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." I would say that you can't tell whether the young man loves you or not unless he tells you so. The fact that his parents like you should mean something to him, but usually if a man likes a maid he doesn't care what anyone else thinks.

I Have Said in My Heart

DOGS

Some woman who evidently had been as unfortunate in her choice of men friends as she was fortunate in her choice of a dog, made that oft-quoted speech: "The more I see of the men the better I like dogs."

Like all smart epigrams, the intimation is hardly true, for there are splendid men, as well as fine dogs, in the world.

The normal woman likes men as well as they like her, and that is a good deal. The antagonism between the sexes which we hear so much about is all tommy rot.

If a woman looks for friendship, comradeship, respect and love from men she'll get it, and if she is looking for trouble she'll be very apt to find it as well.

If, however, she is insatiable for unqualified and unquestioning loyalty she had better pin her faith to a dog.

I have never yet found a human being who sometimes will not question the opinion and judgment of the best beloved, and I have never yet known a human love that has always thought the loved one perfect.

Dogs seem to do this, but dogs, poor things, cannot talk, you know, and one never can tell just what they think when they caper about us all ready to go out with us and we send them back home disconsolate.

True, they go back with the most unhappy air, and they welcome one with effusion when one returns, but I'll wager they sometimes say a few things to themselves about us that we would not care to hear.

However, I am very fond of my dog, and I have seen an expression of unquestioning love and adoration in his eyes that I never expect to see in the eyes of any man. He is always about when I want him, and I can send him away when I grow tired of him. You will all agree in these particulars: He has the advantage over one's men friends.

For a long time the Pekinese spaniel has been the pet of society. Pierpont Morgan had one for many years that was always with him and generally in his arms.

Do you know that I sometimes think the reason we like dogs so well is because they are always flattering us?

Your dog tells you in dog language every day that you are the god who moves the world, that no one can compare with you, and the sun will cease to shine when you cease to be.

It's silent adoration, but none the less it is always incense before our egotism.

Memo: Women feel the need of this unquestioning love more than men, and that is why you see so many women making playthings and pets of dogs.

HE ROLLED IN HIS SLEEP

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Frank Harper, although a sailor for many years, never learned to swim. One afternoon, while taking a nap on the East River water front, he stretched, yawned, and turned over, but was rudely awakened when he fell into the water. Another sailor heard his lusty cries and pulled him out. He then went home and continued his nap undisturbed.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—A man on a street car here observed a locust on the back of a girl's coat. Carefully, so as not to frighten the girl, he brushed at it with his newspaper. The locust clung. "There's a bug bug on your back, lady," he told her. "I know, I put it there," the girl answered, "it's for style." "Can you beat that," said the man as he got off in confusion while the passengers laughed.

SURPRISE!

A well-known magician, who wore a goatee and mustache, happened one day to see a man who was his perfect double. The magician expected to use the double in a substitution trick.

"When I jump into the trunk," he said, "you jump out of your chair in the audience and come up on the stage, and the people will think it's me."

That evening the magician jumped into the trunk and closed the lid, and at the same instant the double arose in his seat and yelled, "Here I am"—but the trick "flopped" miserably.

The new hired man had shaved off his whiskers.

CENTRAL HIGH WILL OPEN GRID RELATIONS WITH "BABY FLYERS"

Central High School footballers, who have experienced a checkered career on the gridiron this season, winning, losing or tying games on alternate week-ends, will meet worthy competition Friday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field in the University of Dayton Preps.

This will also be the final opportunity to see the 1927 eleven in action at home this season as the closing Thanksgiving Day game with Springfield High will be played away.

Xenia is opening football relations with the "Baby Flyers" this year and hopes to celebrate in proper fashion by walking off the field victorious at the end of the little argument Friday.

Central's performance on the football field this year has been erratic to say the least. Three games have been won, three lost and two tied and a victory this week is needed if the season is to be termed successful.

Xenia looked the part of an inferior eleven against Troy High last week, submitting to the worst drubbing of the year. Troy's victory was by even a greater margin than Piqua's win over the Blue and White. As Troy is not considered in Piqua's class, something was virtually wrong with Xenia last week. Spirit was lacking and as a whole the team gave a dull exhibition.

Better things are looked for against the Preps as a return to form is anticipated. Many members of the team will be performing before a home crowd for the last time in their high school careers and all will wish to give their best in this contest.

Xenia has an old score to settle with the Preps. The Flyers have won every basketball game played with the Blue and White in the last several years and Xenia hopes to show that the Dayton eleven is not also superior in football.

ELEVEN SENIORS TO END GRID CAREERS

Scholastic football careers of six regulars and five other members of Central High School's football squad will be brought to a close Thanksgiving Day against Springfield High.

There are eleven seniors on the squad including William Clemans, center; Leroy Doak, end; Eddie Higgins, guard; Captain Robert Morton, halfback; Harold Murray, tackle; Abe Rakoff, guard, who is out for the season with an injured knee; and Clarence Keiter, Charles McDonald, Lawrence McPherson, William Rich and H. E. Schmidt, substithtes.

Officials for the Xenia-Dayton Preps game Friday will probably be: "Tubby" Sauer, Dayton, referee; Dr. A. E. Richards, Cedarville, umpire; and Paul Fuller, this city, headlinesman.

Friday's contest will start at 3 o'clock.

COURT PRACTICE HERE POSTPONED

Coach Victor Kolb postponed the initial basketball practice of the season, scheduled for Monday afternoon at Central High School.

A majority of the available court candidates are at present members of the football squad and Coach Kolb believes football is the paramount issue just now and that basketball must wait its turn.

Several other reasons influenced the postponement. The basketball floor in the gymnasium is being remarked with the lines painted and new goals must be erected. Baskets have been ordered but the shipment has not arrived.

STUDENTS TO RULE ON FOOTBALL FUTURE

Students comprising Division "A" of Antioch College are expected to take a vote soon on the question of putting football on probation at the college for another three years.

"A" Division students returned to school Monday for a five-week's period of study.

Division "B" approved the continuance of football by a large majority in a vote taken last week but the combined vote of both divisions will decide the question.

YOUTH IS DEAD

Joseph McFarland, 16, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McFarland, Cedarville, died Monday morning, following an operation for appendicitis. The young man had been taken ill only Thursday.

Funeral services will be held at the Nagley Funeral Home, Cedarville, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in Cedarville Cemetery.

BOWLING

Two new records were established in the Recreation League Monday night as the league-leading Fords won two out of three games from the second-place Studebaker Commanders. Studebakers rolled a team total of 1,002 pins in the middle game, exceeding the former record of 999 held by the Greene County Lumber Co., by three pins. Fords broke the previous record for high team three-game total by thirty-six pins. Winners rolled games of 903, 942 and 983 for a total of 2,828. The former league record of 2,792 was also held by the Fords. Gannon topped the Fords with a series of 595 white Malavazos led the losers with 568.

Buicks climbed out of last place in the league for the first time by defeating the Los Ramos Cigars the odd game in three Monday night, dropping the latter team to last position. Wagner was best for the Buicks with a series of 612 while Highley led the losers with 549. Box score Fords-Studebakers match:

TRIAL OF $50,000 DAMAGE ACTION TO START IN DAYTON

Trial of the $50,000 damage suit filed by John Simison, Dayton Ave., as father and administrator of the estate of Eleanor Simison, deceased, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, was scheduled to begin in United States District Court in Dayton Tuesday morning.

The action was brought in the Greene County Common Pleas Court April 11 but was later ordered removed to the federal court for trial.

The suit is based on a grade crossing crash at the W. Main St. crossing December 18, 1926 in which Eleanor Simison, Dayton Ave., lost her life.

Decedent, an invited guest in an auto driven by Raymond Stiles, the petition stated, was killed instantly when the car collided with a southbound extra fare, through Pennsylvania passenger train, traveling two hours late from St. Louis, Mo., to New York City.

It is charged a view of the rails was obstructed on both the north and south sides by buildings and was further impeded by a freight car standing on a siding.

The railroad company is charged with being negligible in failing to properly protect the crossing. Plaintiff also claims the electric bell, designed as a warning, was out of order and did not ring.

Attorneys C. L. Darlington and F. L. Johnson represent the administrator.

FAMILY PAPERS OF PENNS DISCOVERED IN OLD IRON CHEST

WINDSOR, Eng., Nov. 15.—Discovery of numerous documents belonging to the Penn family, the family from which came William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, U. S. A., is reported to have been made by Edward Winkup, a Windsor art dealer.

Breaking open an old iron bound chest which he had bought among numerous other antiques from a local resident, Winkup found it packed tight with musty old documents, oil and water color painting, and several locks of hair.

On the back of a miniature found in the chest was the inscription: "This portrait of the Hon. Lady Juliana Penn, by George Romney, Earl of Pomfret. Romney, the inscription revealed, was paid $5 to paint it. The back of a water color bore the inscription: "An old cottage at Stoke, Eng. A gift to Lady Penn, from Henry Raeburn on his visit to Stoke Court, 1785." There were also one or two sketches bearing the signature and date "David Cox, 1827."

There were a number of locks of hair believed to belong to William Penn and his wife. Some of the hair was wrapped in Penn's invitation to the Coronation of William the Third in Westminister Abbey. This gives the number of his seat at the ceremony.

A Book of Devotions, dated 1639, contained the name of William Penn, and of other members of his family.

American art experts are expected to attempt to acquire the relics for America.

XENIA AUTO DEALER TO VISIT FACTORY

J. B. Bice, of the Xenia Garage Co., S. Detroit St., will leave on a special train from Dayton Wednesday morning as a member of a party of 150 Buick dealers from the Cincinnati district, for a week's business visit and inspection of the General Motors Corp. plant at Flint, Mich.

Mr. Bice will be the only local representative at the nation-wide gathering of auto dealers. The dealers expect to tour the plants, visit the proofing ground and watch actual tests designed to demonstate the speed, power and durability of many makes of automobiles.

REAL "RED AND BLACK" BACKFIELD

One of the outstanding backfield quartets in intercollegiate football this fall is that of Washington and Jefferson's eleven which ranks as one of the four leading teams in the east. The "Four Patriots" are Bill Amos, fullback; Bob Heisel, halfback; Cleve Cook, right halfback, and "Red" Kirkman, quarterback. The school colors of W. and J. are red and black, Amos and Heisel have black hair while Cook and Kirkman sport fiery-hued locks.

IOWA PLANNING TO MINE ITS OWN COAL FOR USE OF STATE

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 15.—The state of Iowa plans to go into the coal mining business on its own. In doing so Iowa will follow the example of some of the other state governments. Kansas, the state officials pointed out, has mined coal for its own institutions for years.

Whether the recent coal strike in Iowa fields is responsible for the state's action was not stated. However, this year the state purchased from Kentucky and other non-union fields thousands of tons of coal that ordinarily would have come from mines within the state.

State As Customer

More than 125,000 tons of coal are used each year in state maintained institutions, and the executive council believes the taxpayers will be saved a considerable amount of money if the natural resources on state-owned property are used.

The present proposal calls for mining coal on land located about ten miles from Des Moines. The property at the present time is utilized as a state game preserve and fish hatchery. Prison labor would be used in the work, it was said, the prisoners receiving a nominal sum for their labor.

Build New Prison

There is also a possibility that a new state penitentiary would be erected near Des Moines if this move is made. At present the penitentiary is located at Ford Madison, in the extreme southeastern corner of the state, while the men's reformatory is at Anamosa, in the east central section.

It is pointed out that a centrally located prison would mean a saving over a long period of years in railroad fare incurred in transporting prisoners from distant parts of the state to the present penitentiaries.

Goggled Gridder

Irving "Brick" Marcus wears glasses when he plays football. He is halfback on the University of California team. A set of goggles was devised to protect the glasses.

HIGHWAY OF PALMS TO BE ADVERTISED

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15. — The "Highway of Palms" is the appropriate name conferred on the East Dixie Highway between Jacksonville and Miami at the joint meeting of the Chambers of Commerce of the east coast cities along the route.

The name was suggested by Mayor E. G. Sewell of Miami. The cities are planning an advertising campaign of the scenic attractions of this route and will circulate 10,000 road maps with leading information about the Highway for motorists.

FRENCH SAY MIAMI IDEAL AIR CENTER

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15.—French aviators believe that Miami should be the headquarters for aviation in the United States, especially for countries south of the United States and Spain, according to Joe Frank, captain of the Harvey Seeds Post Drum and Bugle Corps, who won first honors at the national convention in France.

The favorable all year round flying conditions about Miami and the southerly Atlantic have been stressed by European airmen.

Troop No. 45, Boy Scouts of America, will hold an important meeting at the new Scout cabin Friday evening, according to Scoutmaster Ernest Blackburn, who urges all members of the Troop to be present.

GRID SQUAD QUITS FOR LACK OF FOOD

BETHANY, W. Va., Nov. 14—Reports reaching here of the disbandment of the high school football team at Centerville, Pa., due to lack of sufficient food to keep the players in trim were confirmed by O. A. Rodefer, principal of the high school, and a former student at Bethany college here.

The report covering the cancellation of Centerville's games for the remainder of the football season is correct, Rodefer said.

The football team was forced to disband because the players—who are sons of union miners made idle when the Vesta Coal Company mines went non-union are not receiving the proper amount of food to keep them physically fit.

The boys' fathers quit work when the Vesta Company started its open shop policy, and are unable to provide the right kind of food and sufficient quantities for their families. Those players who are the sons of union miners simply lack the necessary stamina when they get into the game, Rodefer declares.

Other school officials join with Rodefer in declaring that the mine dispute is responsible for the situation that made it necessary for Coach W. M. Bebout, to disband the team and call off the November games.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S. which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Henry was paying out $25.00 every month on his past due bills. This was a pretty steep payment for Henry to make.

His friend, Bill, suggested that he get $200.00 from us and pay all of these bills. Then he would only have to make a payment of $14.00 monthly.

HEALTH SEAL BONDS FEATURE OF XMAS SEAL SALE IS SAID

Christmas Seal Bonds, in denominations of $5.00 and $10.00, "as a sound investment in public health" as expressed by a member of the local Anti-Tuberculosis Seal Committee, will be offered in the seals sales in Greene County.

Each "bond" bears twelve coupons and the "interest" consists in participating in improvement of the well-being of Greene County.

The other feature of the seal drive is the effort to acquaint the people of Greene County with the urgent necessity for anti-tuberculosis work, here and now, the committee points out. The goal in the local drive is $1,500 and work to be accomplished, it is hoped, includes the purchase of scales for every school in the county and clinics for several parts of the county.

"The primary goal, however, is not the mere sale of 'bonds' and seals, but education," a committee member declared Monday. Even the sale of seals by mail this year will be undertaken in a new manner.

Eight hundred people will receive a letter stating the object of the campaign and a sample sheet of seals. The letter states specifically that the seals are sent without obligation. The recipient may not care to buy any seals or again he may want more than the number sent. The purpose of the letter is, first of all, to tell people what the seals are for.

GOVERNMENT ADDS TO LIVESTOCK SHOW

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 15—The federal and state governments will add exhibits and lectures to the educational program of Cleveland's third annual Livestock and Agricultural Exposition, Nov. 15 to 19 and a number of prominent officials will be in attendance, A. Z. Baker, show manager, has announced.

To officially open the show, City Manager W. R. Hopkins will pen a message announcing the show to President Calvin Coolidge, attach it to the leg of a homing pigeon and release it to fly eastward to Washington.

The navy department will send an exhibit of homing pigeons from Antacostia naval yards and a group of pictures. Pigeons have been of particular value to the navy since airplanes came into use, for carrying messages to shore.

Diet and Health

Duodenal and Stomach Ulcers

G.—Yes, duodenal and stomach ulcers are curable by adequate medicinal treatment (which means largely adequate dietetic treatment). The treatment consists first of all of frequent feedings. I will give you some data right now from an article by Dr. Vanderhoof, in the A. M. A. Journal.

"1. The ideal food, as outlined by Sippy, and used by a great many physicians, is two ounces each of cream and sweet milk, to which is added ten grains of sodium citrate, given once every hour from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. In the average instance of chronic duodenal ulcer, however, six feedings a day suffice, and the patient is instructed never to go more than three hours, while awake, without putting food into the stomach. The food between meals and at bedtime may consist of a glass of sweet milk or a milk-shake with egg. When this is not convenient, a good substitute is cream cheese with crackers and butter.

"2. Diet.—Except for the acute cases and those in which there is hemorrhage, the patient is given a liberal diet, and it should be explained to the individual with a chronic duodenal ulcer, that he does not have 'indigestion' but, rather, too much digestion. These patients are told to eat a general diet with the exception of seven types of food, which are to be avoided: (1) all acids, such as vinegar, pickles, and sour foods; (2) raw fruits, especially apples, grapes and citrous fruits; (3) soups and meat extractives; (4) condiments and spices, such as an excess of salt and pepper, mustard and horseradish; (5) intense sweets, such as honey, molasses and candy; (6) very coarse foods, as nuts and corn, and (7) alcohol in every form, but especially sour wines, cider and grape juice. The best food for patients with ulcer is fat, such as cream, butter and olive oil, and the next food is albumen in some form, and they are told to partake freely of milk, eggs and all kinds of cooked meat.'"

The next parts of the treatment relate to the medication. For that you must see a physician.

3.—Duration of Treatment: "The treatment must be carried out regularly and persistently over a period of two years. If omitted for one or two days, is is conceivable that the healing of the ulcer may be delayed thirty days or more."

Other Treatments: This consists of the attempt to correct any other physical impairments, especially tonsils, sinuses and teeth.

Subsequent Care: "At the expiration of two years, all medication is discontinued. The patient is told he may eat what he wishes, except that he should avoid acids, intense sweet, and excess condiments, and especially cider, grape juice and sour wines. It is also advisable that a patient with a healed duodenal ulcer should not go too long without food, and many patients continue to eat between meals and at bedtime, although not with the exact regularity required during the period of treatment."

Don't have ulcer! It can be prevented by proper diet and proper hygiene otherwise. (Do you want our article on Balanced Diet? Send in a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.)

The Electronic "Cure"

The Abrams Electronic treatments are entirely worthless, according to all of the scientific tests made of them. The committee of the Scientific American investigated the claims for a year (so have many other scientists) and made public a report of the fact that they are worthless.

The machine is reputed to cure pneumonia and all sorts of diseases. Dr. Abrams himself died of pneumonia. It is considered so much of a fake that I know of one medical society at least that disbars its members who use it.

Tomorrow: Notes on Teeth.

NOTE: Please send in stamped, addressed envelope with requests for answers.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875. —Adv.

The Theater

When Vincent Youmans composed "Tea For Two" the song hit of "No, No, Nanette," he could not have anticipated that "two" was a digit that presaged litigation both for himself and his father, Vincent Youmans, Sr. Two actions have been filed by Mrs. Youmans the composer's chorus girl wife, in Chicago courts.

One is against the husband, asking separate maintenance and the other is a suit for $100,000 against Youmans, Sr., but its nature has not been disclosed. The "two" whom counsel for Mrs. Youmans blame for the separate maintenance suit, are twins, born to the couple about two and a half months ago, shortly after the Youmans had signed under a "separation contract." Mrs. Youmans' attorney said Youmans agreed to pay his wife $100 a week for herself and the "child" the birth of twins being an unlooked-for contingency. The mother now seeks larger weekly payments to meet the demands of the larger family.

"Flying cranks" are a new type of movie workmen developed by the boom in aviation pictures. They are now greatly in demand. "Flying cranks" are fellows who are experts at the camera and also capable airplane pilots. The latest air pictures demand unusual shots taken in mid air and only the boys adept at both camera and control stick are given the call for this kind of work.

NIGHT PATRONAGE AT LIBRARY GAINS

It has been a matter of interest to the staff of the County District library to see the results of the "open every night" rule which went into effect October 1.

For this purpose a daily record of readers using the library after 5:30 p. m., has been kept. This record shows that during October, 998 persons used the library after that time. Mondays and Saturdays were the favorite nights, although an average of about forty per night used it during the other days of the week.

GRASS ON FIRE

Firemen used chemicals in extinguishing burning grass and weeds in the rear of the property of Attorney Frank L. Johnson, N. Galloway St., at 1:20 o'clock Monday afternoon. No damage resulted. The blaze is thought to have resulted from the burning of rubbish in the rear of the premises.

RECEIVER NAMED

ATHENS, O., Nov. 15—The Hocking Domestic Coal Mining Company, employing about 100 men in normal times, and with property valued at more than $200,000, has been placed in the hands of a receiver in court here. It is said that the long strike caused the difficulties of the concern.

Farm Notes

MUST IMPORT APPLES

While the average Ohioan is eating four-fifths of a bushel of apples—which takes him a year—the Ohio apple grower is producing only two-fifths of a bushel. The rest are shipped into the state by rail, principally from two widely separated points, Washington and New York. The Ohio grower thus faces the competition of orchardists who sort, grade, and pack their fruit attractively.

According to Charles W. Hauck of the department of rural economics of the Ohio State University, the difference between the production and the consumption of apples in Ohio is due to two factors. One is the increase in the non-agricultural population and the other a decrease in the volume production of apples. Ohio produces fewer apples than it did in 1889, yet since that time city population has reached more than 84 per cent.

Only one-fifth of Ohio's apple trees are in commercial orchards. The remainder are on general farms, where they do not receive proper care and are being allowed to die without being replaced. Nor is the fruit from them scientifically cared for. The one-fifth in commercial orchards, on the other hand, are well cared for and replaced.

Hauck believes that with the dying of the trees on the general farm, the commercial orchardist will meet less competition from that source, the improved quality and careful packing will enable him to compete favorably with apples from the orchards of Washington and New York. To his distinct advantage is the fact that he can market his apples at the roadside or after a short haul by truck to the nearest large Ohio city.

NO MORE CONCERTS

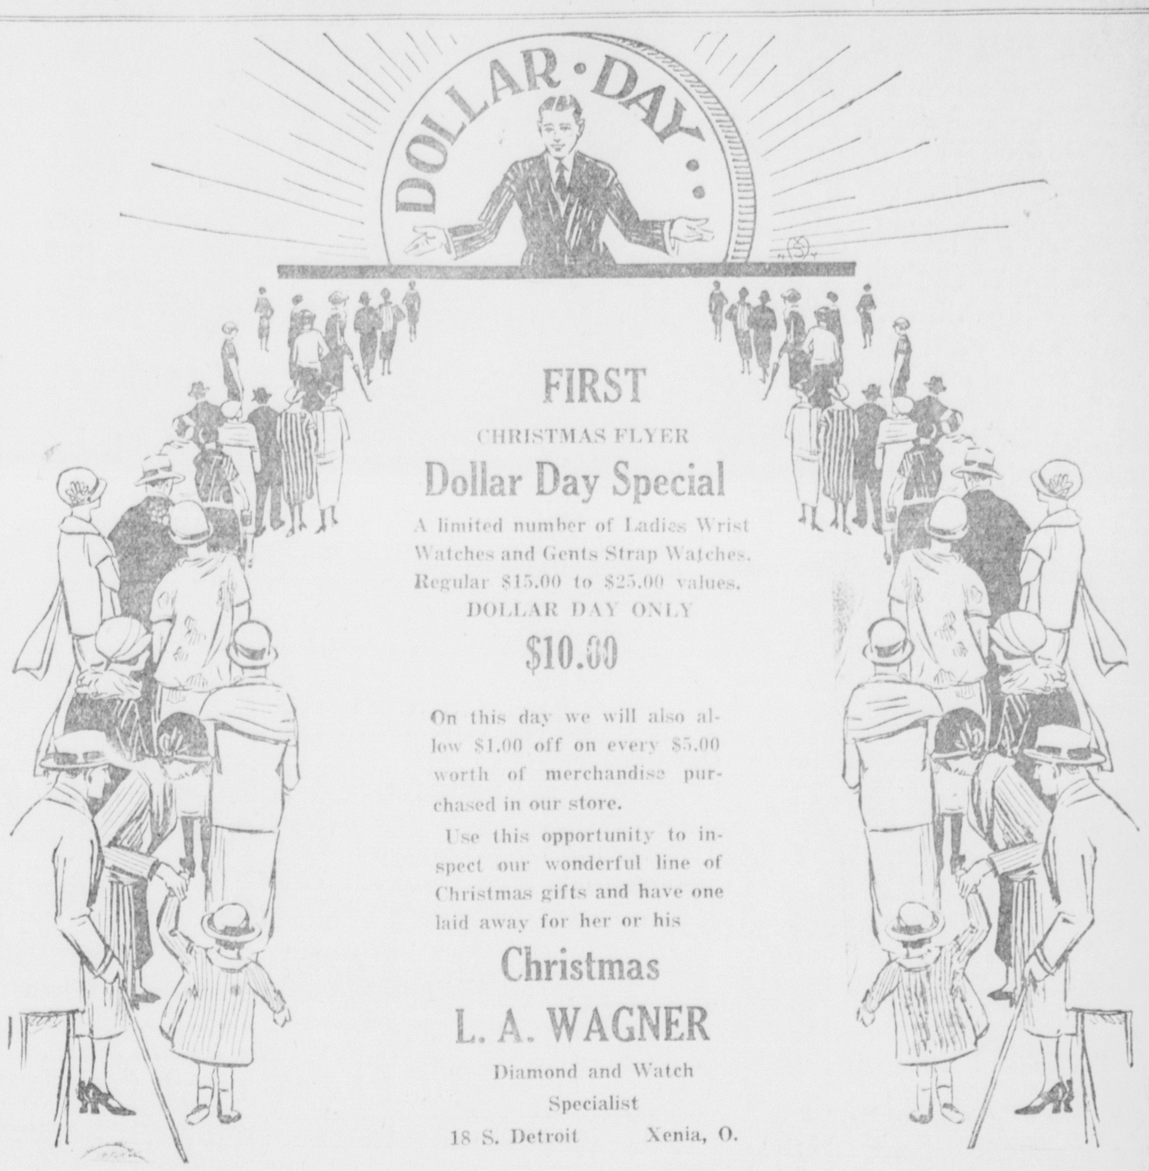

A southern storekeeper, who was also justice of the peace, was sitting in front of his store when a colored man drove up.

"Say, squire," the latter announced, "dat woman you married me to las' week has ten chillun, an' every one ob dem plays some kin' ob a musical instument."

"Why, that's a regular band, Mose," replied the justice. "Do you want me to send off and get you a horn too?"

"No, suh," was the dismal response. "Ah wants to git disbanded."

CANDIDATES SLOW IN FILING EXPENSE ACCOUNTS IS SAID

Reluctance is noted on the part of candidates at the election last Tuesday to file expense statements, according to R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board of elections.

Candidates, whether successful or defeated, are required by law to file itemized statements of campaign receipts and expenditures with the election board officials within ten days after the election.

The time expires Friday, November 18, and whereas it is estimated there were more than 230 candidates for public office over the county at the election, only five candidates have filed expense accounts.

None of the five in question listed receipts and the expenses aggregated only $4.50.

E. J. Kelsey, candidate for Spring Valley Twp. trustee, expended $2.50 and C. M. Mussetter, Caesarcreek Twp. trustee spent $2 their accounts revealed.

A. D. Thomas and Homer M. Spahr, New Jasper Twp. trustee candidates, and H. E. Bales, successful candidate for re-election on the Greene County Board of Education, listed no receipts or expenditures.

The open season for hares and rabbits began Tuesday and would-be nimrods expect the animals to be plentiful.

Question: Why should school children receive emulsified cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because the strain of the study-period and playground uses up energy, and emulsified cod-liver oil not only provides energy but also protects with its vitamins.

PARENTS MUST SET EXAMPLE DECLARES RABBI GERSTEIN

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15—Said to be the youngest rabbi in the United States, Rabbi I. Gerstein, who preached his first sermon at the Rosh Hashana services in the Oheb Zadek synagogue in Denver, is strong in his belief that to bring the young people back to the churches and synagogues of the nation, th eparents must be made to come first. This twenty-two-year. old rabbi declares:

"Parents set the example and children follow.

"Youth of today is no worse than it ever was. Times and customs have changed, but at heart the young people are no different from what their own parents were twenty years ago.

"Children seemed more religious and home-loving before the war, only because their parents were themselves greater stickers for their church and their fireside.

"You can't expect boys and girls whose parents spend their evenings playing cards, and who go to churches and synagogues only for show, to feel any great spiritual urge. Boys and girls must be trained from their earliest infancy to certain ideals of life and religion if they are to gro wup that way."

Rabbi Gerstein finished an eight year course at the Hebrew Theological college in Chicago in just six and one-half years.

NEWSPAPER BLAMES CALLES FOR REVOLT HELD IN NICARAGUA

Charges Mexico With Fomenting Trouble For United States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The real object of Mexico in stirring up anti-American feeling in the Caribbean countries, and in promoting the Nicaraguan revolution, was to prevent the United States from constructing the new ocean-ocean canal across Nicaragua, the Washington Herald asserted today in continuing its expose of Mexican activities for the past year.

President Calles, the Herald stated, was desirous of establishing and maintaining in Nicaragua a government antagonistic to the United States, and for that reason financed and supported Dr. Juan B. Sacasa in his revolt against the Diaz government.

Today's installment describes the peace conference which the American state department had arranged between the Diaz and Sacasa forces at Corinto, and lays the blame for the failure of that conference directly at the door of the Mexican government. Two telegrams which the Herald asserts were obtained from the secret files of the Mexican foreign office are reproduced to support the charge.

FOURTEEN OHIOANS MASTER FARMERS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Fourteen Ohio farmers have been selected as the Master Farmers of the state for this year by the Ohio Farmer, agricultural magazine. Announcement of the selection was made at a meeting of the 4-H Club congress, held at Ohio State University, this week.

The list of the best farmers of the state being selected on efficiency in farming and community relations include: W. L. Biddle, Wauseon; F. C. Brown, Worthington; W. G. Farnsworth and W. W. Farnsworth of Waterville; John P. Gasson, Versailles; N. W. Lee, New London; Stanley Lee, Archbald; Walter Marion, Circleville; Glen G. McElroy, Irwin; Charles S. Neer, Mechanicsburg; M. L. Reutenik, Brooklyn Heights; W. N. Schaff, Bexley; C. B. Teegarden, Duvall; C. C. Terrell, New Vienna.

L. L. Rummell, editor of the Ohio Farmer, was the chairman in charge of the committee making the selections. Other members were Dean Alfred Vivian, of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University, and Earl G. Reed, agricultural agent of the New York Central Railroad. More than 120 farmers were nominated to be considered for Master Farmers.

TRANS-OCEAN ACES HOLD "CONVENTION"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Trans-Oceanic Flyers' Association, composed of those intrepid souls who made aerial history in the summer of 1927, scattered far and wide today after what they termed their "first annual convention."

Feted by President Coolidge and by official Washington generally, the thirteen men and Miss Ruth Elder left the capital today to return to their various planes for future aerial progress.

Col. Charles Lindbergh, decorated with the Hubbard medal last night and acclaimed as have few men in Washington ever been, went down into Virginia for a week's duck-hunting. He will be the guest of Gov. Harry Byrd.

Ruth Elder returned to New York where she expects to map out her plans for the immediate future. The Miss America of the air was genuinely thrilled by her reception in the capital. President Coolidge, she said, was "a darling," and Lindbergh "a peach."

PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—With weather conditions at sea reporte favorable, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, today was making last-minute adjustments to his plane in which he plans to fly to Australia, via Hawaii and other Pacific points. Giles said he may begin the flight tomorrow.

YOUNG FOLKS SHUN JAZZ AND DANCE WALTZ IN THIS HAMLET

Artists conception of the Jazz-less dance

By NORMAN E. BROWN

HARTSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 15—I have just dropped out of the land of jazz for a night—dropped out as completely as though I had taken some magic wand and turned back the calendar forty years.

I have enjoyed—keenly—a night of recreation with folk who are thrilled with the lively step of the quadrille, content with the music of the town fiddler and his "Old Dan Tucker," and aren't worried at all about the "modern tendencies" wrecking our social flivvers.

Dance in Historic Inn

Here, in an old inn, where Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry stopped on his long march to Lake Erie to engage in his memorable battle with the British, the years are rolled back two nights each week to the days when Lee Mason, now proprietor, was "a kid."

Hartstown is sixteen miles southwest of Meadville. The piano player, Gerald Mason, is imported from Meadville. It's a short drive nowadays but that ride drops you into the darkness and silence of a far-country night. I made the trip with the piano player.

Ten miles from Meadville we pulled up at a cross-roads. The country store was dark. Where the blacksmith had been, the garage loomed—but black as well. We drove on.

Gather Around Wood Fire

"Pull up under that big elm," someone shouted when we drove up to the inn. "Looks like rain."

It might just as well have been a row of buggies and spring wagons as a row of gas buggies lined along the road.

In the "living room" of the inn a wood fire crackled. The ladies gathered around the stove. The men braved the chillier dance hall.

Merle Louterman resigned his bow. The music started. Harry Woodward, caller, sung out: "Get your partners for a quadrille." Six sets answered the call.

"Have had eleven sets in this same room," said Woodward.

The music begun.

"Salute your partners."

I looked at the dancers. All old folks? No. Not all. Two or three young folks. But the flappers were dancing with the older partners.

So were the Mr. Flappers.

"Same in the side."

"Join your hands and circle around."

Tires the Flappers

"It's usually the young folks ask the older ones to dance," said Woodward between calls.

"Meet your maid and promenade."

"Reason is that they have to have one of us old timers to keep them going right," Woodward again.

Later.

"Old Mother Finnegan," and Pete Groger calling. Little fellow and how he had danced: Intricate little quick steps that bothered his partners—including two maids who could enter any beauty contest.

Feet itching strains of the "Arkansas Traveler," "The Ocean Wave" and a dozen other old timers. Two o'clock in the morning. Anyone tired? The young folks.

"Meet your maid and promenade. Anywhere, I don't care. Down in the cellar in the old arm chair."

Oh yes, there were one or two modern dances.

"Mostly for a breathing spell for them young uns," said one resident who had lived within sight of the dance hall some forty-odd years.

BRITISH FLYERS ARE KEEN OVER AMERICA AIR COMPETITION

LONDON, Nov. 15—Aeronautical circles of Great Britain are showing unusual interest in the Daniel Guggenheim Safe Aircraft Competition recently been opened in America. Probably this is due to the reward of $100,000 which is offered to the winner. At any rate, five British aircraft firms have already entered the competition, and a number of others are urging their designers to construct a plane capable of meeting the requirements necessitated for entering the contest.

British Opinion Divided

French, Italian and German aircraft firms have also given notice that they will participate, if the prize has not been won by October 29th, 1929, when the entry list closes.

British aviation opinion is somewhat divided as to whether there is a possibility of any machne fulfilling the conditions laid down in the time limit whch has been imposed.

Test For Planes

The hardest task is considered to be that of finding a plane which can maintain horizontal flight at thirty-five miles an hour, one of the tests, it is feared that any plane capable of flying at thirty-five m. p. h. would be unable to carry the load and pass the other competition tests required.

Satisfaction is expressed among aviators, however, that the conditions are so severe, for they point out that insistence upon the requirements laid down will undoubtedly lead to a type of aircraft which will be as safe a vehicle as any in common use by road or rail today.

RUMOR AUTO MERGER AFTER DURANT VISIT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15—Great interest was aroused in financial circles here today because of a short and rather mysterious visit to the city by William C. Durant, prominent leader in the automotive industry. Reports were current in downtown brokerage circles that an automobile merger was in the making.

Among several concerns mentioned in connection with the report were the Peerless, Jordan, and Gardner groups. No confirmation or denial of such a plan could be obtained here from officers of the three companies mentioned, and Durant had left Cleveland this morning for a destination not disclosed. During his stay he refused to discuss his mission.

Recent heavy accumulation of Hupp Motor stock has been attributed by certain financial circles to Durant's activities.

MORROW WILL TAKE TRIP WITH CALLES

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow has accepted an invitation from President Calles to accompany him on a trip into the state of Nuevo Leon next week, it was learned today. The President and the American ambassador will be away from the capital for several days, it is understood.

The journey will be made in the famous "million dollar" presidential train recently purchased in the United States. While on this trip President Calles plans to inspect the irrigation works at San Martin, state of Nuevo Leon this week and then view the national highway now under construction between Saltillo and the border. He also plans to visit his ranch, outside Monterey.

"BIGGER DOLLAR DAY" SAYS HUTSLAR

G. R. HUTSLAR

"Bigger and better than ever" is the slogan of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association for "Dollar Day" to be held by Xenia business houses, Thursday, November 17.

"Xenia merchants are earnestly co-operating and doing everything in their power to make 'Dollar Day' this year a success for the future," said G. R. Hutslar, secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, Tuesday.

Bargains and special offers submitted by the merchants have received the "okeh" of a censoring committee of the Retail Merchants Association. This "okeh" insures the truth of the value of the item advertised and no two merchants are advertising the same items, although they may offer the same specials in their stores. This plan outlaws petty competition and gives the merchants an "even break" in the "Dollar Day" plan, it is believed.

More than forty individual merchants advertised in the double-page "spread" in The Gazette today. In addition to this advertising display for "Dollar Day" merchants are advertising their special items in separate advertising space.

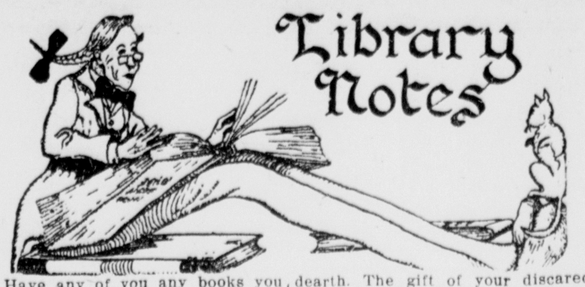

"The Xenia Retail Merchants' Association has answered the long-felt need for co-operation between Xenia merchants," Mr. Hutslar declared Tuesday. "'Dollar Day' this year, the first sponsored by the newly-organized body, is a sample of the aims and hopes for the Xenia business men, held by the association."

FREE MANOILESCU OF TREASON CHARGE

BUCHAREST, Nov. 15—Jubilant at the acquittal of Michael Manoilescu of a charge of high treason, supporters of former Crown Prince Carol today predicted the speedy return of Carol to the throne of Roumania.

The acquittal of the former secretary of state was considered as a serious defeat of Premier Bratianu under whose order Manoilescu was arrested and tried for complicity in a plot to place Carol on the throne now occupied by his six-year-old son, King Michael.

Manoilescu's trial, which began last Thursday, united all the leaders of the opposition to the Bratinu regime and they were unanimous in defending the right of Prince Carol to assume the throne he once renounced.

Have any of you any books you aren't using on your book shelves? Have you any magazines or newspapers in your cellar? If you have, we know of a place that could use them.

The Greene County Dist. Library needs more books for the children. As many as possible have been purchased but there is still a dearth. The gift of your discared books and magazines will assist in supplying duplicates to the various branches and stations as well as to the main children's rooms. Even old papers will help as they can be sold and the money used to buy new books for the juvenile department.

Won't you help the library celebrate Children's Book Week by helping it to put new children's books into its collection? If so call 365-R, leave your name and address and the library will call for your donations.

O. S. U. FRESHMEN PHYSICALLY GOOD

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15—A recent report issued by Dr. J. H. Nichols, head of the physical education department at Ohio State University, reveals that the freshmen entering the university the fall term were the best class physically for several years.

Approximately 86 per cent of the students examined were given Class B rating or slightly above the average physical level. About one of every twenty-four of the students were placed in Class A. Last year there were 78 per cent of the students placed in Class B but one of every ten were Class A rating.

A large portion of the men students showed a postural defect but the per cent was again lower than in previous years, Dr. Nichols states.

Eleven per cent of 279 students had flat feet according to the report while last year more then 14 per cent of the examined students were afflicted in this way.

The number of men greatly overweight also was less than last fall, Dr. Nichols says.

BOUGHT WATER FOR BOOZE

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15—Earl Paglow, of Lima is returning home today acquitted of the charges filed against him by federal dry agents who raided his home at Lima recently after they were tricked into buying a jug of water that they believed to be liquor.

"If you can sell water to a dry agent and get away with it, it's all right." This was the ruling passed down by United States Commissioner W. Gaines in the case of Paglow that was heard Thursday.

TO REMAIN PASSIVE

PARIS, Nov. 15—Baroness Haroudin De Reinach Werth, formerly Miss Helen Tennyson, of Pittsburgh, who divorced her French husband and remarried him only to get a legal separation later, told International News Service today she would not oppose the divorce action brought by her husband in the Rota Tribunal of the Vatican at Rome.

135 PERISH AS SHIP FOUNDERS

BOMBAY, Nov. 15—One hundred and thirty five persons perished today when the Coastal Launch Tukaram foundered in a violent storm sixty miles off Bombay.

Seven were rescued.

Ships were sent out to search for the Launch Jayanti which was also feared to have foundered in the gale.

Failure of the searching ships to locate the Jayanti led to apprehensions that the ninety six Indian passengers and all the crew had been drowned.

BRAZIL REPUBLIC IS CELEBRATING

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 15.—Brazil today celebrated the thirty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the republic.

The president gave a reception for the diplomatic corps.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night. —Adv.

VIRGINIA CORBIN BATTLES MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—A daughter, turned against her mother because she "spoiled" her parties and "squandered" her screen earnings, Virginia Lee Corbin, 16-yearlold blonde film star, today was seeking to have her mother removed as her guardian, and, incidentally, deprived of a tidy income from pictures.

The court action comes as an aftermath of Mrs. L. A. Corbin's admitted attempt to end her life by swallowing "enough poison to kill ten men" followed a dramatic quarrel with her actress-daughter.

CHAPTER XIV

If there was one thing in the world that Lily Lexington knew absolutely nothing about, that one thing was housework.

She never had swept a room, washed a panful of dishes, or boiled a kettle of water in her life. She never had so much as aired her own bed or hung up her nightgowns in the clothes closet.

She got up in the morning to a clean house, to a well-cooked breakfast served to her on a bedside try, to a household of which she was the petted and coddled darling.

And so she laughed and shook her head at Pat's question.

"Could I do aall the work in that house? Why, Pat, I couldn't do the work in any house! I may as well be honest. If anyone gave me a basket of socks to be darned or a pan of dough to be made into loaves—well, I just wouldn't know how to set to work, that's all."

Then her face grew sober. "But I could learn, I suppose," she said, slowly. "I'm awfully clever at picking up things.... Why did you ask me if I'd live in a house like that?"

Pat neatly turned the car at the end of the street and started down the other side. "Because you said you'd marry me today," he told her. "And I wanted to give you some idea of what marrying me would mean. It would mean the hardest kind of work, day in and day out, every day in the year. You see that building next to our house?"

Lily nodded. It was a little two-story building with a grocery store occupying the first floor.

A barrel of potatoes and a wooden rack covered with baskets of pansies stood on the sidewalk before it. The windows were filled with parsley and carrots and oranges and turnips. Beyond them were shelves stacked with bright-colored cans and pasteboard boxes, and in the doorway stood a rosy-cheeked little wman with steel-rimmed spectacles pushed up on her forehead, a plaid shawl around her shoulders, and the whitest of starched white aprons, standing out from her little waiste.

"That's my mother, Lily," Pat said, quietly.

The little woman was not looking at them. She had an egg in her hand and she was studying the shell as if it were some rare discovery.

Pat laughed. "She's looking to see if the eggs are fresh or not," he said. "She always says she can tell a fresh egg by the look of the shell. I don't know whether she can or not, but she's a fine business woman."

"Business woman?" asked Lily. She did not look at all like Lily's notion of a business woman—that quaint little woman with her gray hair drawn back in an old-fashioned knot and a tiny plaid shawl pinned around her shoulders.

"Yeah," answered Pat, with his husky drawl. "That's our grocery store, and she helps Dad to run it, besides taking care of the house and bringing up three children. That is, she did bring up three of us—my two sisters and myself. We're all grown now, of course."

The car had passed the grocery and the small white house, with its neat brown shutters and its geraniums. But Lily turned her lovely head and looked back at the two buildings.

"Why, she must be marvelous, Pat, to keep up a house and help your father, too!" she cried, her eyes meeting his in a look of admiring wonder. "My mother keeps two maids and a laundress and a cleaning woman all the time!"

"Besides me," said Pat with an old smile. "I've promised to whitewash the basement for her this week. She explained that she wanted the house all cleaned up because her daughter was getting married the tenth of June."

Lily was silent. Somehow his words seemed to build up a wall between them once more.. . . He was the man who drove her father's car and took orders from her mother. The man who was to help clean the house for her wedding—her marriageto Staley Drummond.

"Pat, let's not talk about my mother or your mother—or anyone but you and me," she said with a kind of little wailing cry. "Let's go and get married and think of everybody else afterward. . . . Pat, do you like me, no foolin'? I've run after you so much, myself, that sometimes it seems to me that all the love is on my side."

His big tanned hand, gripping hers so that she cried out with the sudden pain of it, answered that question for her.

"Well, then, why don't we get married—now—today?"

Pat's fingers found the engagement ring on her hand and turned it. "That's why, for one reason. Because you're engaged to Drummond," he said. "Another reason is that I couldn't afford to have a wife like you, Lily. You'd go downtown and buy a hat and a manicure, and my salary for a week would be shot. See?"

Lily looked at her manicured fingers, their nails like bits of almond-shaped coral, their skin like white velvet. Lovely soft hands that were almost as useless as the hands of a doll. . . . Hands that never had held anything heavier than a golf stick, or done any work more tiring than shuffling a deck of cards.

"You'd be the most unhappy girl in the world—married to me," Pat was saying now. "You wouldn't understand my way of living and my kind of folks any more than I can understand your kind. You wouldn't like my friends—"

"I'd love them!" Lily broke in passionately. "I'd loce them because they were your friends!"

They were going down another little side street, and all at once Pat turned the car into a driveway and stopped before a red brick building with big white letters painted across its front: "JETTERSON'S AUTO LIVERY."

"This," said Pat, waving his hand toward the building and grinning, "is the home of the Mercury Cab Company, and the place where yours truly is putting together the neatest little piston ring that was ever perfected." He honked the horn, and after a minute the doors of the garage sild back.

The car rolled into the gasoline-scented dimness, and Pat jumped out and vanished into an office at the right of the doorway.

In a minute or two he appeared, and with him was a short blonde man with a nice good-natured face who smiled broadly at Lily. He did not take off his checked cap nor remove an unlighted cigar from his mouth when he shook hands with her.

"Miss Lexington, I want you to meet the best friend I have in the world—Roy Jetterson," said Pat, looking from one to the other of them.

"I certainly am pleased to meet you at last," Roy Jetterson said, pumping Lily's hand up and down with vim and vigor. "I certainly am!—I'd like you to meet the wife, too. She's a great little woman, Miss Lexington. You and Sadye would get along fine, wouldn't they, Pat, eh?"

Pat said nothing.

Silence fell upon the little group.

"I'm expectin' Sadye to drop in here most any minute," Roy Jetterson went on, after an uncomfortable pause. "She's going down town to buy herself a spring suit so she tells me this morning at breakfast. 'I'll be down about 9 for some jack," she says. Cool eh?"

He winked at Lily, and Lily winked back at him. She liked him in spite of his loud cap and shirt, in spite of his loud way of talking. He seemed to be smart and pleasant and sincere.

But a second later, when Mrs. Roy Jetterson walked into the garage on the highest heels that Lily had ever seen, she disliked her thoroughly and completely.

She knew she was "Savde" the minute she came in, for her husband called her by her name and threw an arm around her plump figure as she snuggled up against the wide, candy-striped silk shirt he wore.

Sadye Jetterson must have been 30 years old when Lily first met her, and she was dressed like a flapper of 17. Her skirts barely reached her plump knees and she wore the thinnest of pink chiffon stockings. Her black satin dress was too small for her and showed too plainly a figure that was all curves.

On the front of her black satin turban was a large pearl buckle and pearl earrings were screwed into her ears. She had a pretty pink, plump face and a high soprano voice. She giggled constantly when she talked.

"How do you do?" she greeted Lily, and laughed a little as she spoke. "Roy and I have heard so much about you. So much!"

"Is that so?" asked Lily, in a voice that was as hard and cold as a shower of hail stones. She hated the idea of Pat talking her over with these two friends of his.... And what had he told them about he? Had he told them how she had been running after him for weeks—climbing into his cab stealing his photograph and refusing to give it back to him?"

"I think we ought to go, Pat," she said, drawing herself up, and lifting her chin so that she seemed to look down from a great height upon the three people who stood beside the car. She held out her hand to the Jettersons and said good-bye to them without the shadow of a smile on her face.

"What do you mean by talking me over with those two people?" she asked Pat, furiously, the minute they were out in the sunshine once more. "Don't you know that a man ought never to discuss a woman with another man.... The idea of talking about me to that Jetterson man—and his wild-looking wife!"

"Is she wild-looking?" Pat asked mildly, taking a brier pipe from his pocket and putting it into his mouth. With his left hand he began to fill the bowl of it as he talked. "She's a mighty nice girl—Sadye Jetterson, whether she's wild-looking or not. She and Roy are my best friends, and ten minutes ago you said you'd love my friends because they were my friends. That's why I wanted you to see them—and you have seen them. But you don't even like them."

Lily shook her beautiful head. "I never could love Sadye Jetterson, and she never could be any friend of mine unless she wore longer skirts and stopped wearing pink stockings on the street. I think she's terrible."

Pat struck a match and lit his pipe—all this with his left hand, as he drove the car through the traffic with his right.

"Do clothes make so much difference? he asked, and Lily nodded.

"You can tell whether a woman's a lady or not, very often, just by the things she wears, and the way she wears them," she answered seriously.

"This day," she said a half hour later, when they stopped the car in a grassy lane that ran along beside an apple orchard, "was made just for us, Pat. The god of things-as-they-seldom - are must have decided to give us one perfect day to ourselves, and this is it. Just look at that bank of clouds—it's like silver."

But Pat had no eyes for the silver-white bank of clouds that lay along the eastern horizon.

He was looking at Lily and he was laughing to himself. "After all this talk about Sadye Jetterson's pink stockings, I notice you're wearing them yourself," he said with a chuckle.

It was true. Lily's stockings had been bought to match the seashell pink sports dress she wore. And they were just the color of Sadye Jetterson's chiffon ones!

"It's all right when they match your dress," she said. "And she had on a black dress.... What makes you be so horrid to me this morning, Pat?"

"You're not so tender and sweet to me," Pat replied. "You accuse me of talking about you to the Jettersons. You bawl me out for it. But it was Elizabeth Ertz who told them about you. I never mentioned you to them."

"And who is Elizabeth Ertz?" Lily wanted to know.

LIBRARY OBSERVES CHILDREN'S WEEK

Children's Book Week, when an effort is made to acquaint parents and others who buy books for children, in buying only the best and in knowing the best, is being observed this week.

The Greene County District Library is celebrating the week in two ways. First, it wants to end the week richer in books than it began it and second, wants to see the end of the week with the adults of the county richer in their knowledge of the wide field of literature for children.

To bring about the first, the library is appealing to the public for gifts of discarded books and magazines to assist the work of supplying duplicates to the various branches and stations and of increasing the children's book fund.

During the week a collection of children's books will be on exhibit at the library, while Miss Sandos, the county librarian, will be available from now to Christmas to talk over the problem of getting the right book to the right child. Parents are asked to make an appointment by calling 365-R.

DEATHS FROM BOOZE NOT OCCASIONED BY POISON IN ALCOHOL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Another heavy toll of poison liquor deaths in the approaching Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday season is confidently expected by officials of the federal prohibition bureau.

"But the deaths can't be laid at the door of the treasury department, on the ground that the government is enforcing the prohibition law by use of deadly poisons," Dr. J. M. Doran, dry chief, told International News Service today.

"Yes, there will be those who die from drinking but the casualties will result from raw moonshine and from over-indulgence—not from the denaturing elements that are placed in industrial alcohol to prevent its diversion."

Since last Christmas, when an epidemic of drinking party fatalities swept the big cities and aroused a strong congressional protest against government-poisoned liquor, the treasury has materially reduced the poisonous denaturing concoctions put in alcohol.

Pyridine, a dangerous poison, used as the chief denaturant a year ago, was banned on instructions of Secretary Mellon who ordered the prohibition bureau to seek formulas, just as effective, but less dangerous. Alcohol, a petroleum product with a taste and odor like burnt crank case oil, was the answer.

The new formula went into effect last April. Despite efforts of high priced bootleg chemists and research in many illicit laboratories, the rum trust so far has failed to distill the oil taste out of alcohol denatured under the new system, according to Doran.

The government still uses four per cent wood alcohol, along with the other denaturant, but this volume is not considered deadly unless taken in unusual quantities. Chemists believe that it will be possible to eliminate all wood alcohol without decreasing the value of the formula.

Prohibition administrators have been warned to take unusual steps to suppress moonshining and diversions of alcohol during the Christmas season. The government is out for a "safe and sane" Christmas.

Doran issued a warning that up-to-date moonshine, produced under unsanitary conditions and by men unfamiliar with distilling, virtually is as poisonous as the old time denatured alcohol. Large quantities often times spell death or blindness.

DELIVERS STRONG SERMON AT CHURCH

The Rev. D. E. Gillespie delivered one of the strongest sermons of his series at the United Brethren Church Sunday evening when he spoke on "Counting the Cost."

He stressed how men are particular in the material world to count the cost before undertaking a great project, but pay little consideration to counting the cost of the "wages of sin."

There were several converts received at the close of the service. The pastor, the Rev. A. J. Furstenberger, had charge of the morning service, when a large group was received into membership and several were baptized.

The revival will continue until at least Wednesday night, when further announcement will be made.

The official board meeting will be held after the Wednesday evening service, if the meeting closes.
